- (b) the offence of defamatory libel;
- (c) the offence of obscene libel.

Service of documents.

21.(1) Any notice or other document required or authorised by or under this Act to be served on any person may be served on him either by delivering it to him, by leaving it at his proper address or by sending it by post.

(2) Any notice or other document so required or authorised to be served on a corporate body is duly served if it is served on the secretary or clerk of that body.

(3) For the purposes of this section, and of section 8 of the Interpretation and General Clauses Act in its application to this section, the proper address of any person is, in the case of the secretary or clerk of a body corporate, that of the registered or principal office of that body, and in any other case is the last address of the person to be served which is known to the Government.

PART 3
INCHOATE OFFENCES

Attempts

Attempting to commit an offence.

22.(1) A person who, with intent to commit an offence to which this section applies, does an act which is more than merely preparatory to the commission of the offence, commits the offence of attempting to commit that offence.

(2) This section applies to any offence which, if it were completed, would be triable in Gibraltar as an indictable offence, other than—

- (a) conspiracy (at common law or under section 27 or any other enactment);
- (b) an offence under section 36 (Encouraging or assisting an offence);
- (c) aiding, abetting, counselling, procuring or suborning the commission of an offence at common law or under section 47;

- (d) an offence under section 48(1) (Assisting offenders) or 49(1) (Concealing offences and false information).

(3) In relation to offences under section 364 (Unauthorised acts with intent to impair, or with recklessness as to impairing, operation of computer etc.), if an act—

- (a) is done in Gibraltar; and
- (b) would fall within subsection (1) as more than merely preparatory to the commission of an offence but for the fact that the offence, if completed, would not be an offence triable in Gibraltar, what the person doing it had in view is to be treated as an offence to which this section applies, but subject to section 372 (Relevance of external law).

(4) A person may be convicted of attempting to commit an offence to which this section applies even though the facts are such that the commission of the offence is impossible.

(5) In any case where—

- (a) apart from this subsection a person's intention would not be regarded as having amounted to an intent to commit an offence; but
- (b) if the facts of the case had been as he believed them to be, his intention would be so regarded,

then, for the purposes of subsection (1), the person is to be regarded as having had an intention to commit that offence.

Application of procedural and other provisions to offences under section 22.

23.(1) A provision to which this section applies has effect with respect to an offence under section 22 (Attempting to commit an offence) as it has effect with respect to the offence attempted.

(2) This section applies to the following provisions of any enactment, whenever passed—

- (a) provisions whereby proceedings may not be instituted or carried on otherwise than by, or on behalf or with the consent of, any person (including any provisions which also make exceptions to the prohibition);
- (b) provisions conferring power to institute proceedings;
- (c) provisions as to the venue of proceedings;
- (d) provisions whereby proceedings may not be instituted after the expiration of a time limit;
- (e) provisions conferring a power of arrest or search;
- (f) provisions conferring a power of seizure and detention of property;
- (g) provisions whereby a person may not be convicted or committed for trial on the uncorroborated evidence of one witness (including any provision requiring the evidence of not less than 2 credible witnesses);
- (h) provisions conferring a power of forfeiture, including any power to deal with anything liable to be forfeited;
- (i) provisions whereby, if an offence committed by a corporate body is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of another person, that person also commits the offence.

Offences of attempt under other enactments.

24.(1) Subsections (2) to (5) have effect, subject to subsection (6) and to any inconsistent provision in any other enactment, for the purpose of determining whether a person has committed an attempt under a special statutory provision.

(2) For the purposes of this section an “attempt under a special statutory provision” is an offence which—

- (a) is created by an enactment other than section 22, including an enactment passed after this Act; and
- (b) is expressed as an offence of attempting to commit another offence (in this section referred to as “the relevant full offence”).

(3) A person commits an attempt under a special statutory provision if, with intent to commit the relevant full offence, he does an act which is more than merely preparatory to the commission of that offence.

(4) A person may be guilty of an attempt under a special statutory provision even though the facts are such that the commission of the relevant full offence is impossible.

(5) In a case in which—

- (a) apart from this subsection a person’s intention would not be regarded as having amounted to an intent to commit the relevant full offence; but
- (b) if the facts of the case had been as he believed them to be, his intention would be so regarded,

then, for the purposes of subsection (3), the person is to be regarded as having had an intention to commit that offence.

(6) Subsections (2) to (5) do not apply to an act done before the commencement of this Part.

Trial and penalties.

25.(1) A person who commits the offence of attempt by virtue of section 22 is liable—

- (a) if the offence attempted is murder or any other offence the sentence for which is fixed by law - on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for life;
- (b) if the offence attempted is indictable but does not fall within paragraph (a) - on conviction on indictment to any penalty to which he would have been liable on conviction on indictment of that offence;

- (c) if the offence attempted is triable either way - on summary conviction to any penalty to which he would have been liable on summary conviction of that offence.

(2) In any case in which a court may proceed to summary trial of an information charging a person with an offence and an information charging him with an offence under section 22 of attempting to commit it or an attempt under a special statutory provision, the court may, without his consent, try the informations together.

(3) If, in proceedings against a person for an offence under section 22, there is evidence sufficient in law to support a finding that he did an act falling within subsection (1) of that section, the question whether or not his act fell within that subsection is a question of fact.

(4) If, in proceedings against a person for an attempt under a special statutory provision, there is evidence sufficient in law to support a finding that he did an act falling within subsection (3) of section 24, the question whether or not his act fell within that subsection is a question of fact.

Effect of sections 22 to 25 on common law.

26.(1) The offence of attempt at common law and any offence at common law of procuring materials for crime are abolished for all purposes not relating to acts done before the commencement of this Part.

(2) Except as regards offences committed before the commencement of this Part, references in any enactment passed before the commencement of this Part which fall to be construed as references to the offence of attempt at common law are to be construed as references to the offence under section 22.

Conspiracy

Conspiracy.

27.(1) Subject to the following provisions of this Part, a person who agrees with any other person or persons that a course of conduct is to be pursued which, if the agreement is carried out in accordance with their intentions, either–

- (a) will necessarily amount to or involve the commission of any offence or offences by one or more of the parties to the agreement; or
- (b) would do so but for the existence of facts which render the commission of the offence or any of the offences impossible, commits the offence of conspiracy to commit the offence or offences in question.

(2) Even if liability for any offence may be incurred without knowledge on the part of the person committing it of any particular fact or circumstance necessary for the commission of the offence, a person does not commit conspiracy to commit that offence by virtue of subsection (1) unless he and at least one other party to the agreement intend or know that that fact or circumstance will exist at the time when the conduct constituting the offence is to take place.

(3) In this Part “offence”–

- (a) means an offence triable in Gibraltar; and
- (b) includes murder even if the murder in question would not be triable in Gibraltar, if it was committed in accordance with the intentions of the parties to the agreement.

Conspiracy to commit offences outside Gibraltar.

28.(1) If each of the following conditions is satisfied in the case of an agreement, this Part has effect in relation to the agreement as it has effect in relation to an agreement falling within section 27(1).

(2) The first condition is that the pursuit of the agreed course of conduct would at some stage involve–

- (a) an act by one or more of the parties; or
- (b) the happening of some other event, intended to take place in a place outside Gibraltar.

(3) The second condition is that that act or other event constitutes an offence under the law in force in that place.

(4) The third condition is that the agreement would fall within section 27(1) as an agreement relating to the commission of an offence but for the fact that the offence would not be an offence triable in Gibraltar if committed in accordance with the parties' intentions.

(5) The fourth condition is that—

- (a) a party to the agreement, or a party's agent, did anything in Gibraltar in relation to the agreement before its formation; or
- (b) a party to the agreement became a party in Gibraltar (by joining it either in person or through an agent); or
- (c) a party to the agreement, or a party's agent, did or omitted anything in Gibraltar in pursuance of the agreement.

(6) In the application of this Part to an agreement in the case of which each of the above conditions is satisfied, a reference to an offence is to be read as a reference to what would be the offence in question but for the fact that it is not an offence triable in Gibraltar.

(7) Conduct punishable under the law in force in any country or territory is an offence under that law for the purposes of this section, however it is described in that law.

(8) Subject to subsection (9), the second condition is to be taken to be satisfied unless, not later than 28 days or such other date as rules of court provide, the defence serve on the prosecution a notice—

- (a) stating that, on the facts as alleged with respect to the agreed course of conduct, the condition is not in their opinion satisfied;
- (b) showing their grounds for that opinion; and
- (c) requiring the prosecution to show that it is satisfied.

(9) The court may permit the defence to require the prosecution to show that the second condition is satisfied without the prior service of a notice under subsection (8).

(10) In the Supreme Court, the question whether the second condition is satisfied is to be decided by the judge alone, and treated as a question of law.

(11) Any act done by means of a message (however communicated) is to be treated for the purposes of the fourth condition as done in Gibraltar if the message is sent or received in Gibraltar.

(12) In any proceedings in respect of an offence triable by virtue of this section, it is immaterial whether or not the defendant was a Gibraltarian at the time of any act or other event proof of which is required for conviction of the offence.

(13) References in any enactment, instrument or document (except those in this Part) to an offence of conspiracy to commit an offence include an offence triable in Gibraltar as such a conspiracy by virtue of this section (without affecting subsection (6)).

Exemptions from liability.

29.(1) A person does not by virtue of section 27 commit conspiracy to commit any offence if he is an intended victim of that offence.

(2) A person does not by virtue of section 27 commit conspiracy to commit any offence or offences if the only other person or persons with whom he agrees are (both initially and at all times during the currency of the agreement)–

- (a) his spouse;
- (b) a person under the age of criminal responsibility; or
- (c) an intended victim of that offence or of each of those offences.

Penalties.

30.(1) A person who by virtue of section 27 commits conspiracy to commit any offence or offences is liable on conviction on indictment–

- (a) in a case falling within subsection (3) or (4) of this section - to imprisonment for a term related in accordance with that subsection to the gravity of the offence or offences in question (referred to in this section as the relevant offence or offences); and
- (b) in any other case- to a fine.

(2) Subsection (1)(a) does not affect the application of section 507 of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011 (Suspended sentences) in a case falling within subsection (3) or (4).

(3) If the relevant offence or any of the relevant offences is—

- (a) an offence of murder, or any other offence the sentence for which is fixed by law;
- (b) an offence for which a sentence extending to imprisonment for life is provided; or
- (c) an indictable offence punishable with imprisonment for which no maximum term of imprisonment is provided, the person convicted is liable to imprisonment for life.

(4) If, in a case other than one to which subsection (3) applies, the relevant offence or any of the relevant offences is punishable with imprisonment - the person convicted is liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding the maximum term provided for that offence or (if more than one such offence is in question) for anyone of those offences (taking the longer or the longest term as the limit for the purposes of this section where the terms provided differ).

(5) In the case of an offence triable either summarily or on indictment the references in this subsection to the maximum term provided for that offence are references to the maximum term so provided on conviction on indictment.

Restrictions on the institution of proceedings.

31.(1) Proceedings under section 27 for conspiracy to commit any offence or offences may not be commenced against any person except by, or with the consent of, the Attorney-General.

(2) If—

- (a) an offence has been committed in pursuance of any agreement; and
- (b) proceedings may not be instituted for that offence because any time limit applicable to the institution of any such proceedings has expired, proceedings under section 27 for conspiracy to commit that offence may not be commenced against any person on the basis of that agreement.

Conspiracy under other enactments.

32. The provisions of sections 27 and 29 apply for determining whether a person commits an offence of conspiracy under any enactment other than section 27, but conduct which is an offence under any such other enactment is not also an offence under section 27.

Effect of acquittal of other defendant.

33.(1) The fact that the person or persons who, so far as appears from the indictment on which any person has been convicted of conspiracy, were the only other parties to the agreement on which his conviction was based have been acquitted of conspiracy by reference to that agreement (whether after being tried with the person convicted or separately) is not a ground for quashing his conviction unless under all the circumstances of the case his conviction is inconsistent with the acquittal of the other person or persons in question.

(2) Any rule of law or practice inconsistent with subsection (1) is abolished.

Offence of conspiracy to defraud.

34.(1) If—

- (a) a person agrees with any other person or persons that a course of conduct is to be pursued; and
- (b) that course of conduct will necessarily amount to or involve the commission of any offence or offences by one or more of the parties to the agreement if the agreement is carried out in accordance with their intentions, the fact that it will do so does not preclude a charge of conspiracy to defraud being brought against any of them in respect of the agreement.

(2) A person who commits conspiracy to defraud is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 10 years or a fine or both.

(3) The provisions of sections 28, 29, 31 and 33 apply to the offence of conspiracy to defraud as they apply to other offences of conspiracy, to the extent applicable.

Abolitions, savings, transitional provisions.

35.(1) Subject to the following provisions, the offence of conspiracy at common law is abolished.

(2) Subsection (1) does not affect the offence of conspiracy at common law if and in so far as it may be committed by entering into an agreement to engage in conduct which—

- (a) tends to corrupt public morals or outrages public decency; but
- (b) would not amount to or involve the commission of an offence if carried out by a single person otherwise than in pursuance of an agreement.

(3) Subsection (1) does not affect—

- (a) any proceedings commenced before the time when this Part comes into force;
- (b) any proceedings commenced after that time against a person charged with the same conspiracy as that charged in any proceedings commenced before that time; or
- (c) subject to subsection (5), any proceedings commenced after that time in respect of a trespass committed before that time.

(4) A person convicted of conspiracy to trespass in any proceedings brought by virtue of subsection (3)(c) is not in respect of that conviction liable to imprisonment for a term exceeding 6 months.

(5) Encouraging or assisting the commission of the offence of conspiracy (whether the conspiracy encouraged or assisted would be an offence at common law or under this Part or any other enactment) ceases to be an offence.

Encouraging or assisting offences

Encouraging or assisting an offence.

36.(1) A person commits an offence if—

- (a) he does an act capable of encouraging or assisting the commission of an offence; and
- (b) he intends to encourage or assist its commission.

(2) A person is not to be taken to have intended to encourage or assist the commission of an offence under subsection (1) merely because such encouragement or assistance was a foreseeable consequence of his act.

(3) A person commits an offence if—

- (a) he does an act capable of encouraging or assisting the commission of an offence; and
- (b) he believes—
 - (i) that the offence will be committed; and

(ii) that his act will encourage or assist its commission.

(4) A person commits an offence if—

- (a) he does an act capable of encouraging or assisting the commission of one or more of a number of offences; and
- (b) he believes—
 - (i) that one or more of those offences will be committed; and
 - (ii) that his act will encourage or assist the commission of one or more of them.

(5) It is immaterial for the purposes of subsection (4)(b) whether the person has any belief as to which offence will be encouraged or assisted.

(6) If a person is charged with an offence under subsection (4) the indictment—

- (a) must specify the offences alleged to be the “number of offences” mentioned in subsection (4)(a); but
- (b) need not specify all the offences potentially comprised in that number.

(7) In relation to an offence under subsection (4), any reference in this Part to the offences specified in the indictment is to the offences specified by virtue of subsection (6)(a).

Proving an offence under section 36.

37.(1) Section 36 is to be read in accordance with this section.

(2) If it is alleged under section 36(1)(b) that a person (D) intended to encourage or assist the commission of an offence, it is sufficient to prove that he intended to encourage or assist the doing of an act which would amount to the commission of that offence.

(3) If it is alleged under section 36(3)(b) that a person (D) believed that an offence would be committed and that his act would encourage or assist its commission, it is sufficient to prove that he believed—

- (a) that an act would be done which would amount to the commission of that offence; and
- (b) that his act would encourage or assist the doing of that act.

(4) If it is alleged under section 36(4)(b) that a person (D) believed that one or more of a number of offences would be committed and that his act would encourage or assist the commission of one or more of them, it is sufficient to prove that he believed—

- (a) that one or more of a number of acts would be done which would amount to the commission of one or more of those offences; and
- (b) that his act would encourage or assist the doing of one or more of those acts.

(5) In proving for the purposes of this section whether an act is one which, if done, would amount to the commission of an offence—

- (a) if the offence is one requiring proof of fault, it must be proved that—
 - (i) D believed that, were the act to be done, it would be done with that fault;
 - (ii) D was reckless as to whether or not it would be done with that fault; or
 - (iii) D's state of mind was such that, were he to do it, it would be done with that fault; and
- (b) if the offence is one requiring proof of particular circumstances or consequences (or both), it must be proved that—
 - (i) D believed that, were the act to be done, it would be done in those circumstances or with those consequences; or

- (ii) was reckless as to whether or not it would be done in those circumstances or with those consequences.

(6) For the purposes of subsection (5)(a)(iii), D is to be assumed to be able to do the act in question.

(7) In the case of an offence under section 36(1)–

- (a) subsection (5)(b)(i) is to be read as if the reference to “D believed” were a reference to “D intended or believed”; but
- (b) D is not to be taken to have intended that an act would be done in particular circumstances or with particular consequences merely because its being done in those circumstances or with those consequences was a foreseeable consequence of his act of encouragement or assistance.

(8) A reference in this section to the doing of an act includes a reference to–

- (a) a failure to act;
- (b) the continuation of an act that has already begun;
- (c) an attempt to do an act (except an act amounting to the commission of the offence of attempting to commit another offence).

(9) In this Part (unless otherwise provided) a reference to the anticipated offence is–

- (a) in relation to an offence under section 36(1) - a reference to the offence mentioned in subsection (2) above; and
- (b) in relation to an offence under section 36(3) - a reference to the offence mentioned in subsection (3) above.

(10) In relation to an offence under section 36(4)–

- (a) it is sufficient to prove the matters mentioned in subsection (5) above by reference to one offence only; but.

- (b) the offence or offences by reference to which those matters are proved must be one of the offences specified in the indictment.

(11) Subsection (10) does not affect any enactment or rule of law under which a person charged with one offence may be convicted of another and is subject to section 44 (Alternative verdicts and guilty pleas).

Supplemental provisions.

38.(1) A person may be convicted of an offence under section 36 whether or not any offence capable of being encouraged or assisted by his act is committed.

(2) If a person's act is capable of encouraging or assisting the commission of a number of offences—

- (a) section 36(1) applies separately in relation to each offence that he intends to encourage or assist to be committed; and
- (b) section 36(2) applies separately in relation to each offence that he believes will be encouraged or assisted to be committed.

(3) A person may, in relation to the same act, commit an offence under more than one provision of section 36.

(4) In reckoning whether—

- (a) for the purposes of section 36(2), an act is capable of encouraging or assisting the commission of an offence; or
- (b) for the purposes of section 36(3), an act is capable of encouraging or assisting the commission of one or more of a number of offences, an offence under section 36 and any other offence of encouraging or assisting, soliciting, inducing or conspiring with another person to commit an offence (whether any of those words is used in the description of that other offence or not) is to be disregarded.

(5) For the purposes of section 36(3)(b)(i) and 36(4)(b)(i) it is sufficient for the person concerned to believe that the offence (or one or more of the offences) will be committed if certain conditions are met.

Defences.

39.(1) A person is not guilty of an offence under section 36 if he proves—

- (a) that he knew certain circumstances existed; and
- (b) that it was reasonable for him to act as he did in those circumstances.

(2) A person is not guilty of an offence under section 36 if he proves—

- (a) that he believed certain circumstances to exist;
- (b) that his belief was reasonable; and
- (c) that it was reasonable for him to act as he did in the circumstances as he believed them to be.

(3) Factors to be considered in determining whether it was reasonable for the purposes of subsections (1) and (2) for a person to act as he did include—

- (a) the seriousness of the anticipated offence (or, in the case of an offence under section 36(4) the offences specified in the indictment);
- (b) any purpose for which he claims to have been acting;
- (c) any authority by which he claims to have been acting.

(4) A person is not guilty of an offence under section 36 by reference to a protective offence if—

- (a) he falls within the protected category; and
- (b) he is the person in respect of whom the protective offence was committed or would have been if it had been committed.

(5) In subsection (4) “protective offence” means an offence that exists (wholly or in part) for the protection of a particular category of persons (“the protected category”).

Jurisdiction.

40.(1) If a person (D) knew or believed that what he anticipated might take place wholly or partly in Gibraltar, he can be convicted of an offence under section 36 no matter where he was at any relevant time.

(2) If it is not proved that D knew or believed that what he anticipated might take place wholly or partly in Gibraltar, he cannot be convicted of an offence under section 36 unless subsection (1), (3) or (8) of section 41 applies.

(3) A reference in this section (and in any of those paragraphs) to what D anticipated—

- (a) in relation to an offence under section 36(1) or (3) - is to the act which would amount to the commission of the anticipated offence;
- (b) in relation to an offence under section 36(4) - is to an act which would amount to the commission of any of the offences specified in the indictment.

(4) Nothing in this section or section 41 restricts the operation of any enactment by virtue of which an act constituting an offence under section 36 is triable under the law of Gibraltar.

Extended jurisdiction in certain cases.

41.(1) This subsection applies if—

- (a) any relevant behaviour of D’s takes place wholly or partly in Gibraltar;
- (b) D knows or believes that what he anticipates might take place wholly or partly in a place outside Gibraltar; and
- (c) either—

- (i) the anticipated offence is one that would be triable under the law of Gibraltar if it were committed there; or
- (ii) if there are relevant conditions, it would be so triable if it were committed there by a person who satisfies the conditions.

(2) In this subsection (1) “relevant condition” means a condition that—

- (a) determines (wholly or in part) whether an offence committed outside Gibraltar is nonetheless triable under the law of Gibraltar; and
- (b) relates to the citizenship, nationality or residence of the person who commits it.

(3) This subsection applies if—

- (a) subsection (1) does not apply;
- (b) any relevant behaviour of D’s takes place wholly or partly in Gibraltar;
- (c) D knows or believes that what he anticipates might take place wholly or partly in a place outside Gibraltar; and
- (d) what D anticipates would amount to an offence under the law in force in that place.

(4) The condition in subsection (3)(d) is to be taken to be satisfied unless, not later than 28 days after the defendant is charged with offence, the defence serve on the prosecution a notice—

- (a) stating that on the facts as alleged the condition is not in their opinion satisfied;
- (b) showing their grounds for that opinion; and
- (c) requiring the prosecution to show that it is satisfied.

(5) The court, if it thinks fit, may permit the defence to require the prosecution to show that the condition is satisfied without prior service of a notice under subsection (4).

(6) In the Supreme Court, the question whether the condition is satisfied is to be decided by the judge alone.

(7) An act punishable under the law in force in any place outside Gibraltar constitutes an offence under that law for the purposes of subsection (3), however it is described in that law.

(8) This subsection applies if—

- (a) any relevant behaviour of D's takes place wholly outside Gibraltar;
- (b) D knows or believes that what he anticipates might take place wholly or partly in a place outside Gibraltar; and
- (c) D could be tried under the law of Gibraltar if he committed the anticipated offence in that place.

(9) For the purposes of subsection (8)(c), D is to be assumed to be able to commit the anticipated offence.

(10) In relation to an offence under section 36(4), a reference in this section to the anticipated offence is a reference to any of the offences specified in the indictment.

Institution of proceedings, etc. for an offence under section 36.

42.(1) Any provision to which this section applies has effect with respect to an offence under section 36 as it has effect with respect to the anticipated offence.

(2) This section applies to any provision in or under an enactment (whenever coming into operation) that—

- (a) provides that proceedings may not be instituted or carried on except by, or with the consent of, the Attorney-General;
- (b) confers power to institute proceedings;

- (c) confers power to seize and detain property;
 - (d) confers a power of forfeiture, including a power to deal with anything liable to be forfeited.
- (3) In relation to an offence under section 36(4)–
- (a) the reference in subsection (1) to the anticipated offence is a reference to any offence specified in the indictment; and
 - (b) each of the offences specified in the indictment must be an offence in respect of which the prosecutor has power to institute proceedings.
- (4) An offence–
- (a) under section 36(1) or (3) - is triable in the same way as the anticipated offence;
 - (b) under section 36(4) - is triable on indictment.
- (5) No proceedings for an offence triable by reason only of a provision of section 41 may be instituted except by, or with the consent of, the Attorney-General.
- (6) No proceedings for an offence under section 36 may be instituted against a person providing information society services who is established in a place outside Gibraltar that is an EEA State unless the derogation condition is satisfied.
- (7) The derogation condition is satisfied if the institution of proceedings–
- (a) is necessary to pursue the public interest objective, namely public policy;
 - (b) relates to an information society service that prejudices that objective or presents a serious and grave risk of prejudice to it; and
 - (c) is proportionate to that objective.

(8) For the purposes of this section–

- (a) a service provider is established in a particular EEA state if he effectively pursues an economic activity using a fixed establishment in that EEA state for an indefinite period and he is a national of an EEA state or a company or firm mentioned in Article 48 of the EEC Treaty;
- (b) the presence or use in a particular place of equipment or other technical means of providing an information society service does not, of itself, constitute the establishment of a service provider;
- (c) if it cannot be determined from which of a number of establishments a given information society service is provided, that service is to be regarded as provided from the establishment where the service provider has the centre of his activities relating to the service; and references to a person being established in an EEA state are to be read accordingly.

(9) In this section–

“information society services”–

- (a) has the meaning given in Article 2(a) of the E-Commerce Directive (which refers to Article 1(2) of Directive 98/34/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 June 1998 laying down a procedure for the provision of information in the field of technical standards and regulations); and
- (b) is summarised in recital 17 of the E-Commerce Directive as covering “any service normally provided for remuneration, at a distance, by means of electronic equipment for the processing (including digital compression) and storage of data, and at the individual request of a recipient of a service”;

“the E-Commerce Directive” means Directive 2000/31/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 8 June 2000 on certain legal aspects of information society services, in particular electronic commerce, in the Internal Market (Directive on electronic commerce).

Persons who may be convicted.

43.(1) In proceedings for an offence under section 36 a person can be convicted if—

- (a) it is proved that he must have committed that offence or the anticipated offence; but
- (b) it is not proved which of those offences he committed.

Power to remove persons attending or preparing for a rave.

69.(1) This section applies to a gathering on land in the open air of 20 or more persons (whether or not trespassers) at which amplified music is played during the night (with or without intermissions) and is such as, by reason of its loudness and duration and the time at which it is played, is likely to cause serious distress to the inhabitants of the locality.

(2) For the purpose of subsection (1) a gathering continues during intermissions in the music and, if the gathering extends over several days, throughout the period during which amplified music is played at night (with or without intermissions).

(3) If, as respects any land in the open air, a police officer of the rank of Chief Inspector or above reasonably believes that—

- (b) 10 or more persons are attending such a gathering which is in progress, or
- (c) 10 or more persons are waiting within 100 metres for such a gathering to begin there, the officer may give a direction that those persons and any other persons who come to prepare or wait for or to attend the gathering must leave the land and remove any vehicles or other property which they have with them on the land.

(4) A direction under subsection (3), if not communicated to the persons referred to in that subsection by the police officer giving the direction, may be communicated to them by any police officer at the scene.

the person commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for 9 months or a fine at level 4 on the standard scale, or both.

(8) In proceedings for an offence under this section it is a defence for the defendant to show that he had a reasonable excuse for failing to leave the land as soon as reasonably practicable or, as the case may be, for again entering the land.

(9) This section does not apply to a gathering of persons which is authorised by a permit or licence issued in accordance with the provisions of another enactment.

Powers of entry and seizure.

70.(1) If a police officer of the rank of Chief Inspector or above reasonably believes that circumstances exist in relation to any land which would justify the giving of a direction under section 69 in relation to a gathering to which that section applies, he may authorise any police officer to enter the land—

- (a) to ascertain whether such circumstances exist; and
- (b) to exercise any power conferred on a police officer by section 69 or subsection (4).

(2) A police officer who is authorised under subsection (1) to enter land for any purpose may enter the land without a warrant.

(4) An order under subsection (1) operates to deprive the offender of his rights, if any, in the property to which it relates, and the property (if not already in police possession) is to be taken into the possession of the police.

(5) Subject to subsection (6), if any property has been forfeited under subsection (1), the Magistrates' Court may, on application by a claimant of the property, other than the offender from whom it was forfeited, make an order for delivery of the property to the applicant if it appears to the court that he is the owner of the property.

(6) An application under subsection (5) by a claimant of the property must be made within 6 months after the date on which an order under subsection (1) was made in respect of the property.

(7) An application under subsection (5) will not succeed unless the claimant satisfies the court either that he had not consented to the offender having possession of the property or that he did not know, and had no reason to suspect, that the property was likely to be used at a gathering to which section 69 applies.

(8) An order under subsection (5) does not affect the right of any person to take, within 6 months after the making of the order, proceedings for the recovery of the property from the person who is in possession of it in pursuant to the order, but on the expiration of 6 months the right ceases.

(9) The Minister may make regulations for the disposal of property, and for the application of the proceeds of sale of property, forfeited by an order under subsection (1) if no application by a claimant of the property under subsection (5) has been made within 6 months after the making of the order, or no such application has succeeded.

(3) A receptacle containing any explosive substance may be forfeited, sold, destroyed, or otherwise disposed of, in the same way as the contents of it.

(4) If a court before whom a person is convicted of an offence against this Part has power to forfeit any explosive substance owned by or found in the possession or under the control of the person, the court may, if it think it just and expedient, instead of forfeiting the explosive, impose upon the person, in addition to any other penalty, a penalty not exceeding a sum that appears to the court to be the value of the explosive substance that is liable to be forfeited.

(5) If any explosive substance is alleged to be liable under this Act to be forfeited—

- (a) an information may be laid against the owner of the substance, for the purpose of enforcing the forfeiture;
- (b) if the owner is unknown, or cannot be found, the court may cause a notice to be advertised, stating that unless cause is shown to the contrary at the time and place named in the notice, the explosive substance will be forfeited; and

(6) The provisions of section 147 with respect to an explosive substance seized pursuant to this Part, and to the officer seizing, removing, detaining, keeping, conveying, or otherwise dealing with it, apply to any explosive substance declared by any court to be forfeited, and to a person lawfully removing, detaining, keeping, conveying, selling, destroying, or otherwise disposing of it.

(7) The court declaring the forfeiture or directing the sale or other disposal of any forfeited explosive substance, or any receptacle, may require the owner of the explosive substance to permit for the purpose of the sale or disposal the use of any vehicle, vessel or aircraft containing the explosive substance, on payment of compensation.

(8) The compensation payable under subsection (7) is to be fixed by the court that makes the order for sale or disposal, or in the event of a dispute, by a judge of the Supreme Court

(9) If the explosive substance is directed to be destroyed, the owner, the person in possession of it, and the owner and master of the vehicle, vessel or aircraft containing it, or any one of them, must destroy the substance accordingly, and if the court so orders, the vehicle, vessel or aircraft may be detained until the substance is so destroyed.

(10) If the Minister is satisfied—

- (a) that default has been made in complying with any such direction by a court;
- (b) that the detention of the vehicle, vessel or aircraft will not secure the safety of the public; and
- (c) that it is impracticable, having regard to the safety of the public or of the persons employed in the destruction, to effect destruction without using the vehicle, vessel or aircraft, or otherwise dealing with it as if it were a receptacle for an explosive substance forfeited under this Part, the Minister may direct that the vehicle, vessel or aircraft be so used or dealt with.

PART 10
OFFENCES AGAINST THE PERSON

Causing and threatening death

Murder.

149.(1) A person who with intent to kill or to cause grievous bodily harm to any person causes the death of another person by an unlawful act or omission commits the offence of murder.

(2) Subject to subsection (3), the penalty on conviction for murder is imprisonment for life.

(3) When sentencing any person convicted of murder to imprisonment for life the court may declare the period which it recommends to the Minister as the minimum period which in its view should elapse before the Minister orders the release of that person on licence under section 54 of the Prison Act, 2011.

(4) In relation to murder and other fatal offences there is no requirement that the death should occur within a year and a day after the infliction of injury, but no prosecution for murder or any other fatal offence may be brought except by or with the consent of the Attorney-General if—

- (a) the injury alleged to have caused the death was sustained more than 3 years before the death occurred; or
- (b) the defendant has previously been convicted of an offence alleged to be connected with the death.

(5) In subsection (4) “fatal offence” means—

- (a) murder, manslaughter, infanticide or any other offence of which one of the elements is causing a person’s death; or
- (b) the offence of aiding, abetting, counselling or procuring a person’s suicide.

No constructive malice.

150.(1) If a person kills another in the course or furtherance of some other offence, the killing does not amount to murder unless done with the same intention as is required for a killing to amount to murder when not done in the course or furtherance of another offence.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), a killing done in the course or for the purpose of resisting an officer of justice, or of resisting or avoiding or preventing a lawful arrest, or of effecting or assisting an escape or rescue from legal custody, is to be treated as a killing in the course or furtherance of an offence.

Diminished responsibility.

151.(1) A person ('D') who kills or is a party to the killing of another is not to be convicted of murder if D was suffering from an abnormality of mental functioning which—

- (a) arose from a recognised medical condition;
- (b) substantially impaired D's ability to do one or more of the things mentioned in subsection (2); and
- (c) provides an explanation for D's acts and omissions in doing or being a party to the killing.

(2) The things referred to in subsection (1)(b) are—

- (a) to understand the nature of D's conduct;
- (b) to form a rational judgment;
- (c) to exercise self-control.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1)(c), an abnormality of mental functioning provides an explanation for D's conduct if it causes, or is a significant contributory factor in causing, D to carry out that conduct.

(4) On a charge of murder, it is for the defence to prove that the person charged is by virtue of this section not liable to be convicted of murder.

(5) A person who but for this section would be liable, whether as principal or as accessory, to be convicted of murder is liable instead to be convicted of manslaughter.

(6) The fact that one party to a killing is by virtue of this section not liable to be convicted of murder does not affect the question whether the killing amounted to murder in the case of any other party to it.

Partial defence to murder: Loss of control.

152. (1) If a person ('D') kills or is a party to the killing of another ('V'), D is not to be convicted of murder if—

- (a) D's acts and omissions in doing or being a party to the killing resulted from D's loss of self-control;
- (b) the loss of self-control had a qualifying trigger; and
- (c) a person of D's sex and age, with a normal degree of tolerance and self-restraint and in the circumstances of D, might have reacted in the same or in a similar way to D.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1)(a), it is irrelevant whether or not the loss of control was sudden.

(3) In subsection (1)(c) the reference to "the circumstances of D" is a reference to all of D's circumstances other than those whose only relevance to D's conduct is that they bear on D's general capacity for tolerance or self-restraint.

(4) Subsection (1) does not apply if, in doing or being a party to the killing, D acted in a considered desire for revenge.

(5) On a charge of murder, if sufficient evidence is adduced to raise an issue with respect to the defence under subsection (1), the jury must assume that the defence is satisfied unless the prosecution proves beyond reasonable doubt that it is not.

(6) For the purposes of subsection (5), sufficient evidence is adduced to raise an issue with respect to the defence if evidence is adduced on which, in the opinion of the trial judge, a jury, properly directed, could reasonably conclude that the defence might apply.

(7) A person who, but for this section, would be liable to be convicted of murder is liable instead to be convicted of manslaughter.

(8) The fact that one party to a killing is by virtue of this section not liable to be convicted of murder does not affect the question whether the killing amounted to murder in the case of any other party to it.

(9) A loss of self-control had a qualifying trigger if–

- (a) D's loss of self-control was attributable to D's fear of serious violence from V against D or another identified person;
- (b) D's loss of self-control was attributable to a thing or things done or said (or both) which –
 - (i) constituted circumstances of an extremely grave character; and
 - (ii) caused D to have a justifiable sense of being seriously wronged.
- (c) D's loss of self-control was attributable to a combination of the matters mentioned in paragraphs (a) and (b).

(10) In determining whether a loss of self-control had a qualifying trigger–

- (a) D's fear of serious violence is to be disregarded to the extent that it was caused by a thing which D encouraged or assisted to be done or said for the purpose of providing an excuse to use violence;
- (b) a sense of being seriously wronged by a thing done or said is not justifiable if D encouraged or assisted the thing to be done or said for the purpose of providing an excuse to use violence;
- (c) the fact that a thing done or said constituted sexual infidelity is to be disregarded.

(11) The common law defence of provocation is abolished.

Manslaughter.

(2) A person who kills another by gross negligence commits the offence of manslaughter.

- (a) kills that person; or
- (b) is party to the killing of that person by a third person, commits the offence of manslaughter and not murder.

(2) If it is shown that a person charged with the murder of another killed the other or was a party to his being killed, it is for the defence to prove that the person charged was acting in pursuance of a suicide pact between him and the other.

(3) For the purposes of this section, “suicide pact” means a common agreement between two or more persons having for its object the death of all of them, whether or not each is to take his own life, but nothing done by a person who enters into a suicide pact is to be treated as done by him in pursuance of the pact unless it is done while he has the settled intention of dying in pursuance of the pact.

Complicity in suicide.

159.(1) A person (‘D’) commits an offence if—

- (a) D does an act capable of encouraging or assisting the suicide or attempted suicide of another person; and

(2) The person referred to in subsection (1)(a) need not be a specific person (or class of persons) known to, or identified by, D.

(3) D may commit an offence under this section whether or not a suicide, or an attempt at suicide, occurs.

(4) A person who commits an offence under this section is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for 14 years.

(5) If on the trial of an indictment for murder or manslaughter of a person it is proved that the deceased person committed suicide, and the defendant committed an offence under subsection (1) in relation to that suicide, the jury may find the defendant guilty of the offence under subsection (1).

(6) If D arranges for a person ('D2') to do an act that is capable of encouraging or assisting the suicide or attempted suicide of another person and D2 does that act, D is to be treated for the purposes of this Part as having done it.

(7) If the facts are such that an act is not capable of encouraging or assisting suicide or attempted suicide, for the purposes of this section it is to be treated as so capable if the act would have been so capable had the facts been as D believed them to be at the time of the act; or had subsequent events happened in the manner D believed they would happen, or both.

(8) A reference in this section to a person doing an act that is capable of encouraging the suicide or attempted suicide of another person includes a reference to his doing so by threatening another person or otherwise putting pressure on another person to commit or attempt suicide.

(9) A reference in this section to an act includes a reference to a course of conduct, and a reference to doing an act is to be read accordingly.

(10) No prosecution for an offence against this section may be commenced except by, or with the consent of, the Attorney-General.

Infanticide.

160. If a woman by any wilful act or omission causes the death of her child, being a child under the age of 12 months, but at the time of the act or omission the balance of her mind was disturbed by reason of—

- (a) her not having fully recovered from the effect of giving birth to a child; or

(b) the effect of lactation consequent upon the birth of the child, then, if the circumstances were such that but for this section the offence would have amounted to murder or manslaughter, she commits the offence of infanticide, and may for the offence be dealt with and punished as if she had committed the offence of manslaughter of the child.

Child destruction.

161.(1) Subject to this section, a person who, with intent to destroy the life of a child capable of being born alive, by any wilful act causes a child to die before it has an existence independent of its mother, commits the offence of child destruction and is liable on conviction to imprisonment for life.

(2) A person is not to be found guilty of an offence against this section unless it is proved that the act which caused the death of the child was not done in good faith for the purpose only of preserving the life of the mother.

(3) For the purposes of this section, evidence that a woman had at any material time been pregnant for a period of 28 weeks or more is prima facie proof that she was at that time pregnant of a child capable of being born alive.

(3) Any order made by the Supreme Court on an appeal under subsection (1)(a) or (b) (other than an order directing that an application be re-heard by the Magistrates' Court) is for the purpose of section 343(1) and 344(5) to be treated as if it were an order of the court from which the appeal was brought (and not an order of the Supreme Court).

the defendant remains subject to the notification requirements.

(3) If the defendant was not a relevant offender immediately before this section applied to him—

- (a) this section causes the defendant to become subject to the notification requirements of this Part from the time the section first applies to him until the relevant order (as renewed from time to time) ceases to have effect, and

Jurisdiction

Territorial scope of offences under this Part.

- (a) whether any act or other event proof of which is required for conviction of the offence occurred in Gibraltar; or

(2) Subject to subsection (3), in the case of such an offence at least one significant link with Gibraltar must exist in the circumstances of the case for the offence to be committed.

(3) There is no need for any such link to exist for the commission of an offence under section 362 to be established in proof of an allegation to that effect in proceedings for an offence under section 363.

(4) Subject to section 372, if–

- (a) any such link does in fact exist in the case of an offence under section 362; and
- (b) commission of that offence is alleged in proceedings for an offence under section 363,

- (a) that the defendant was in Gibraltar at the time when he did the unauthorised act (or caused it to be done); or

(4) Subject to subsection (6), a condition specified in subsection (1) or (2) is to be taken as satisfied unless, not later than rules of court may provide, the defence serve on the prosecution a notice—

- (b) showing their grounds for that opinion; and
- (c) requiring the prosecution to show that it is satisfied.

(5) In subsection (4) “the relevant conduct” means—

- (a) if the condition in subsection (1) is in question, what the defendant intended to do or facilitate;
- (b) if the condition in subsection (2) is in question, what the defendant had in view.

(6) The court, if it thinks fit, may permit the defence to require the prosecution to show that the condition is satisfied without the prior service of a notice under subsection (4).

(7) In the Supreme Court the question whether the condition is satisfied is to be decided by the judge alone.

National status immaterial.

373.(1) In any proceedings brought in respect of any offence to which this section applies it is immaterial to guilt whether or not the defendant was a British person at the time of any act, omission or other event proof of which is required for conviction of the offence.

- (a) any offence under section 362 to 368;

(4) In seizing any article referred to in subsection (3), a police officer must have due regard to the rights and interests of any person affected by such seizure to carry on his normal activities.

(5) A person who without lawful excuse obstructs the lawful exercise of the powers granted under this section commits an offence.

(6) In this section—

“premises” includes land, buildings, movable structures, vehicles, vessels, aircraft and hovercraft;

(2) It is immaterial whether the appropriation is made with a view to gain, or is made for the thief’s own benefit.

(3) Sections 392 to 396 have effect as regards the interpretation and operation of this section (and, except as otherwise provided by this Part, apply only for purposes of this section).

392.(1) A person’s appropriation of property belonging to another is not to be regarded as dishonest—

- (a) if he appropriates the property in the belief that he has in law the right to deprive the other of it, on behalf of himself or of a third person; or
- (b) if he appropriates the property in the belief that he would have the other’s consent if the other knew of the appropriation and the circumstances of it; or
- (c) (unless the property came to him as trustee or personal representative) if he appropriates the property in the belief that the person to whom the property belongs cannot be discovered by taking reasonable steps.

(2) A person’s appropriation of property belonging to another may be dishonest even if he is willing to pay for the property.

393.(1) Any assumption by a person of the rights of an owner amounts to an appropriation, and this includes, if he has come by the property (innocently or not) without stealing it, any later assumption of a right to it by keeping or dealing with it as owner.

(2) If property or a right or interest in property is or purports to be transferred for value to a person acting in good faith, no later assumption by him of rights which he believed himself to be acquiring amounts, by reason of any defect in the transferor's title, to theft of the property.

394.(1) “Property” includes money and all other property, real or personal, including things in action and other intangible property.

(2) A person cannot steal land, or things forming part of land and severed from it by him or by his directions, except in the following cases, that is to say—

- (a) when he is a trustee or personal representative, or is authorised by power of attorney, or as liquidator of a company, or otherwise, to sell or dispose of land belonging to another, and he appropriates the land or anything forming part of it by dealing with it in breach of the confidence reposed in him; or
- (b) when he is not in possession of the land and appropriates anything forming part of the land by severing it or causing it to be severed, or after it has been severed; or
- (c) when, being in possession of the land under a tenancy, he appropriates the whole or part of any fixture or structure let to be used with the land.

(3) For purposes of subsection (2)—

- (a) “land” does not include incorporeal hereditaments;
- (b) “tenancy” means a tenancy for years or any less period and includes an agreement for such a tenancy, but a person who after the end of a tenancy remains in possession as statutory tenant or otherwise is to be treated as having possession under the tenancy;
- (c) “let” is to be construed accordingly.

(6) Wild creatures, tamed or untamed, are to be regarded as property; but a person cannot steal a wild creature not tamed nor ordinarily kept in captivity, or the carcase of any such creature, unless either it has been reduced into possession by or on behalf of another person and possession of it has not since been lost or abandoned, or another person is in course of reducing it into possession.

395.(1) Property is to be regarded as belonging to any person having possession or control of it, or having in it any proprietary right or interest (not being an equitable interest arising only from an agreement to transfer or grant an interest).

(2) If property is subject to a trust, the persons to whom it belongs are to be regarded as including any person having a right to enforce the trust, and an intention to defeat the trust is to be regarded accordingly as an intention to deprive of the property any person having that right.

(3) If a person receives property from or on account of another, and is under an obligation to the other to retain and deal with that property or its proceeds in a particular way, the property or proceeds is to be regarded (as against him) as belonging to the other.

(4) If a person gets property by another’s mistake, and is under an obligation to make restoration (in whole or in part) of the property or its proceeds or of the value thereof, then to the extent of that obligation the property or proceeds are to be regarded (as against him) as belonging to the person entitled to restoration, and an intention not to make restoration is to be regarded accordingly as an intention to deprive that person of the property or proceeds.

(5) Property of a corporation sole is to be regarded as belonging to the corporation despite a vacancy in the corporation.

396.(1) A person who appropriates property belonging to another without meaning the other permanently to lose the thing itself is nevertheless to be regarded as having the intention of permanently depriving the other of it if his intention is to treat the thing as his own to dispose of regardless of the other’s rights; and a borrowing or lending of it may amount to so treating it if, but only if, the borrowing or lending is for a period and in circumstances making it equivalent to an outright taking or disposal.

(2) Without limiting subsection (1), if a person, having possession or control (lawfully or not) of property belonging to another, parts with the property under a condition as to its return which he may not be able to perform, this (if done for purposes of his own and without the other’s authority) amounts to treating the property as his own to dispose of regardless of the other’s rights.

Intimidation, etc.

Intimidation, etc. of witnesses, jurors and others.

- 478.(1) A person commits an offence if–
- (a) he does an act which intimidates, and is intended to intimidate, another person (“the victim”);
 - (b) he does the act knowing or believing that the victim is assisting in the investigation of an offence or is a witness or potential witness or a juror or potential juror in proceedings for an offence; and

- (c) he does or threatens to do it because of that knowledge or belief.

(3) For the purposes of subsections (1) and (2) it is immaterial that the act is or would be done, or that the threat is made—

- (a) otherwise than in the presence of the victim; or
- (b) to a person other than the victim.

(4) The harm that may be done or threatened may be financial as well as physical (whether to the person or a person's property) and similarly as respects an intimidatory act which consists of threats.

(5) The intention required by subsection (1)(c) and the motive required by subsection (2)(c) above need not be the only or the predominating intention or motive with which the act is done or, in the case of subsection (2), threatened.

(6) A person who commits an offence under this section is liable—

- (a) on summary conviction to imprisonment for 12 months or the statutory maximum fine, or both;

- (b) in relation to a person who has, or is believed by the defendant to have, assisted in an investigation into an offence, but was not also a witness in proceedings for an offence - the period of one year beginning with any act of his, or any act believed by the defendant to be an act of his, assisting in the investigation; and

- (c) in relation to a person who both has, or is believed by the defendant to have, assisted in the investigation into an offence and was a witness in proceedings for the offence - the period beginning with any act of his, or any act believed by the defendant to be an act of his, assisting in the investigation and ending with the anniversary mentioned in (a) above.
- (10) For the purposes of the definition of the relevant period in subsection (9)–

Contempt of court

Strict liability rule.

479.(1) In this Part “the strict liability rule” means the rule of law whereby conduct may be treated as a contempt of court as tending to interfere with the course of justice in particular legal proceedings regardless of intent to do so.

(2) The strict liability rule applies—

- (a) only in relation to publications, and for this purpose “publication” includes any speech, writing, programme included in a cable programme service or other communication in whatever form, which is addressed to the public at large or any section of the public;
- (b) only to a publication which creates a substantial risk that the course of justice in the proceedings in question will be seriously impeded or prejudiced;
- (c) to a publication only if the proceedings in question are active within the meaning of this section at the time of the publication.

(3) Section 484 applies for determining the times at which proceedings are to be treated as active within the meaning of this section.

(4) A person is not guilty of contempt of court under the strict liability rule as the publisher of any matter to which that rule applies if at the time of publication (having taken all reasonable care) he does not know and has no reason to suspect that relevant proceedings are active.

(5) A person is not guilty of contempt of court under the strict liability rule as the distributor of a publication containing any such matter if at the time of distribution (having taken all reasonable care) he does not know that it contains such matter and has no reason to suspect that it is likely to do so.

(6) The burden of proof of any fact tending to establish a defence afforded by this section to any person lies upon that person.

(7) Subject to this section a person is not guilty of contempt of court under the strict liability rule in respect of a fair and accurate report of legal proceedings held in public, published contemporaneously and in good faith.

(8) In any such proceedings the court may, if it appears to be necessary for avoiding a substantial risk of prejudice to the administration of justice in those proceedings, or in any other proceedings pending or imminent, order that the publication of any report of the proceedings, or any part of the proceedings, be postponed for a period the court thinks necessary for that purpose.

(9) For the purposes of subsection (7) a report of proceedings is to be treated as published contemporaneously—

- (a) in the case of a report of which publication is postponed pursuant to an order under subsection (8) of this section - if published as soon as practicable after that order expires;
- (b) in the case of a report of committal proceedings of which publication is permitted by virtue only of section 475(2) - if published as soon as practicable after publication is so permitted.

(10) A publication made as or as part of a discussion in good faith of public affairs or other matters of general public interest is not to be treated as a contempt of court under the strict liability rule if the risk of impediment or prejudice to particular legal proceedings is merely incidental to the discussion.

Confidentiality of jury's deliberations.

480.(1) Subject to subsection (2), it is a contempt of court to obtain, disclose or solicit any particulars of statements made, opinions expressed, arguments advanced or votes cast by members of a jury in the course of their deliberations in any legal proceedings.

(2) This section does not apply to any disclosure of any particulars—

- (a) in the proceedings in question for the purpose of enabling the jury to arrive at their verdict, or in connection with the delivery of that verdict; or
- (b) in evidence in any subsequent proceedings for an offence alleged to have been committed in relation to the jury in the first mentioned proceedings, or to the publication of any particulars so disclosed.

Use of tape recorders.

481.(1) Subject to subsection (4), it is a contempt of court to—

- (a) use in court, or bring into court for use, any tape recorder or other instrument for recording sound, except with the leave of the court;
- (b) publish a recording of legal proceedings made by means of any such instrument, or any recording derived directly or indirectly from it, by playing it in the hearing of the public or any section of the public, or to dispose of it or any recording so derived, with a view to such publication;
- (c) use any such recording in contravention of any conditions of leave granted under paragraph (a).

(2) Leave under paragraph (a) of subsection (1) may be granted or refused at the discretion of the court, and if granted may be granted subject to conditions the court thinks proper with respect to the use of any recording made pursuant to the leave; and if leave has been granted the court may at the like discretion withdraw or amend it either generally or in relation to any particular part of the proceedings.

(3) Without affecting any other power to deal with an act of contempt under paragraph (a) of subsection (1), the court may order the instrument, or any recording made with it, or both, to be forfeited; and any object so forfeited must (unless the court otherwise determines on application by a person appearing to it to be the owner) be sold or otherwise disposed of in the manner the court directs.

(4) This section does not apply to the making or use of sound recordings for purposes of official transcripts of proceedings.

Offences of contempt of Magistrates' Court.

482.(1) The Magistrates' Court has jurisdiction under this section to deal with any person who—

- (a) wilfully insults the magistrate or magistrates, any witness before or officer of the court or any legal representative having business in the court, during his or their sitting or attendance in court or in going to or returning from the court; or

- (b) wilfully interrupts the proceedings of the court or otherwise misbehaves in court.

(2) In any such case the court may—

- (a) order any officer of the court, or any police officer, to take the offender into custody and detain him until the rising of the court; and
- (b) commit the offender to custody for a specified period not exceeding one month or impose on him a fine at level 4 on the standard scale, or both.

(3) The Magistrates' Court may at any time revoke an order of committal made under subsection (2) and, if the offender is in custody, order his discharge.

(4) Sections 575 (Limit on fines), 579 to 586 (Enforcement of fines) and 180 (Power to rectify mistakes) and Part 13 (Appeals to Supreme Court) of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011 apply in relation to an order under this section as they apply in relation to a sentence on conviction or finding of guilty of an offence.

Penalties and procedure.

483.(1) If a court has power to commit a person to prison for contempt of court and (apart from this provision) no limitation applies to the period of committal, the committal—

- (a) must (without affecting the power of the court to order his earlier discharge) be for a fixed term;
- (b) must not on any one occasion exceed 2 years in the case of committal by the Supreme Court or Court of Appeal, or one month in the case of committal by the Magistrates' Court or the Coroners' Court.

(2) If the Magistrates' Court or the Coroners' Court has power to fine a person for contempt of court and (apart from this provision) no limit applies to the amount of the fine, the fine must not exceed level 4 on the standard scale.

(3) A court has the same power to make a hospital order under Part 28 of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011 in the case of a person suffering from mental disorder who could otherwise be committed to prison for contempt of court as it has under that Part in the case of a person convicted of an offence.

(4) Proceedings for a contempt of court under this Part may not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Attorney-General or on the motion of a court having jurisdiction to deal with it.

(5) A fine imposed under this section is, for the purposes of any enactment, deemed to be a sum adjudged to be paid by a conviction and may be enforced accordingly.

Times when proceedings are active.

484.(1) Criminal, appellate and other proceedings are active within the meaning of section 479 at the times respectively prescribed by the following subsections; and in relation to proceedings in which more than one of the steps described in any of those subsections is taken, the reference in that subsection is a reference to the first of those steps.

(2) Subject to the following subsections, criminal proceedings are active from the relevant initial step specified in subsection (3) until concluded as described in subsection (4).

(3) The initial steps of criminal proceedings are—

- (a) arrest without warrant;
- (b) the issue of a warrant for arrest;
- (c) the issue of a summons to appear;
- (d) the service of an indictment or other document specifying the charge;
- (e) an oral charge.

(4) Criminal proceedings are concluded—

- (a) by acquittal or, as the case may be, by sentence;
- (b) by any other verdict, finding, order or decision which puts an end to the proceedings;
- (c) by discontinuance or by operation of law.

(5) The reference in subsection (4)(a) to sentence includes any order or decision consequent on conviction or finding of guilt which disposes of the case, either absolutely or subject to future events and a deferment of sentence under Part 20 of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011.

(6) Proceedings are discontinued within the meaning of subsection (4)(c)—

- (a) if the charge or summons is withdrawn or a nolle prosequi entered;
- (b) in the case of proceedings commenced by arrest without warrant, if the person arrested is released, otherwise than on bail, without having been charged.

(7) Criminal proceedings cease to be active if an order is made for the charge to lie on the file, but become active again if leave is later given for the proceedings to continue.

(8) Without affecting subsection (4)(b), criminal proceedings against a person cease to be active if—

- (a) the defendant is found to be under a disability such as to render him unfit to be tried or unfit to plead; or
- (b) a hospital order is made in his case under Part 28 of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011, but become active again if they are later resumed.

(9) Criminal proceedings against a person which become active on the issue of a warrant for his arrest cease to be active 12 months after the date of the warrant unless he has been arrested within that period, but become active again if he is subsequently arrested.

(10) Proceedings other than criminal proceedings and appellate proceedings are active from the time when a date for the trial or hearing is fixed until the proceedings are disposed of or discontinued or withdrawn; and for the purposes of this subsection any motion or application made in or for the purposes of any proceedings is to be treated as a distinct proceeding.

(11) Appellate proceedings are active from the time when they are commenced—

- (a) by application for leave to appeal or apply for review, or by notice of such an application;
- (b) by notice of appeal or of application for review;
- (c) by other originating process, until disposed of or abandoned, discontinued or withdrawn.

(12) If, in appellate proceedings relating to criminal proceedings, the court—

- (a) remits the case to the court below; or
- (b) orders a new trial,

any further or new proceedings which result are to be treated as active from the conclusion of the appellate proceedings.

Supplementary provisions.

485.(1) No court may require a person to disclose, nor is any person guilty of contempt of court for refusing to disclose, the source of information contained in a publication for which he is responsible, unless it be established to the satisfaction of the court that disclosure is necessary in the interests of justice or the security of Gibraltar or for the prevention of disorder or crime.

(2) If a court that has power to do so allows a name or other matter to be withheld from the public in proceedings before the court, the court may give directions prohibiting the publication of that name or matter in connection with the proceedings that appear to the court to be necessary for the purpose for which it was so withheld.

(3) Nothing in this Part—

- (a) prejudices any defence available at common law to a charge of contempt of court under the strict liability rule;
- (b) implies that any publication is punishable as contempt of court under that rule which would not be so punishable apart from those provisions;
- (c) restricts liability for contempt of court in respect of conduct intended to impede or prejudice the administration of justice.

PART 20
HARMFUL AND OBSCENE PUBLICATIONS, ETC.

(2) If the Minister is of the opinion that any publication is of a kind likely to fall into the hands of children or young persons and consists wholly or mainly of stories told in pictures (with or without the addition of written matter), being stories portraying—

- (a) the commission of crimes;
- (b) acts of violence or cruelty; or
- (c) incidents of a repulsive or horrible nature, in such a way that the work as a whole would tend to corrupt a child or young person into whose hands it might fall, the Minister—

- (a) may by order declare it to be a harmful publication;
- (a) if it is published outside Gibraltar, may prohibit the importation of it and in the case of a periodical publication, by the same or a subsequent order, may prohibit the importation of any past or future issue of it.

Harmful publications

Prohibition of importation of harmful publications.

487.(1) A person who imports—

- (a) any harmful publication;
- (b) any plate prepared for the purpose of printing copies of a harmful publication; and
- (c) any photographic film prepared for that purpose, commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for 6 months or a fine at level 3 on the standard scale, or both.

(2) Without affecting criminal liability under subsection (1), the importation of an article of a kind mentioned in that subsection is prohibited for the purposes of the Imports and Exports Act 1986.

Offence of printing, publishing, selling, etc. harmful publications.

488.(1) A person who prints, publishes, sells or lets on hire a harmful publication, or has any such publication in his possession for the purpose of selling it or letting it on hire, commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for 6 months or a fine at level 3 on the standard scale, or both.

(2) In any proceedings against a person in respect of selling or letting on hire a harmful publication or of having it in his possession for the purpose of selling it or letting it on hire, it is a defence for him to prove that he had not examined the contents of the publication and had no reasonable cause to suspect that it was one to which this section applies.

(3) A prosecution for an offence under this section may not be commenced except by, or with the consent of, the Attorney-General.

Powers of search and seizure.

489.(1) If a magistrate is satisfied by written information on oath that there are reasonable grounds for suspecting that a person—

- (a) has committed an offence under section 488 in relation to a publication (“the relevant publication”); and
- (b) has in his possession or under his control—
 - (i) any copies of the relevant publication or any other harmful publication; or
 - (ii) any plate prepared for the purpose of printing copies of the relevant publication or any other harmful publication, or any photographic film prepared for that purpose, the magistrate may issue a search warrant authorising a named police officer to enter (if necessary by force) the premises specified in the warrant and any vehicle or stall used by the person for the purposes of trade or business and to search the premises, vehicle or stall and seize any of the things mentioned in paragraph (b) that the officer finds in the premises or stall or vehicle.

(2) The court by or before which a person is convicted of an offence under section 488 with respect to a publication may order any copies of that publication and any plate prepared for the purpose of printing copies of it, or photographic film prepared for that purpose, being copies which have, or a plate or film which has, been found in the possession of the person or under his control, to be forfeited.

(3) An order made under this section by the Magistrate’s Court or, on appeal from that court, by the Supreme Court, does not take effect until the expiration of the ordinary time within which an appeal in the matter of the proceedings in which the order was made may be lodged (whether by giving notice of appeal or applying for a case to be stated for the opinion of the Supreme Court) or, if such an appeal is duly lodged, until the appeal is finally decided or abandoned.

Obscene publications

Test of obscenity.

490.(1) For the purposes of this Part an article is deemed to be obscene if its effect or (if the article comprises 2 or more distinct items) the effect of any one of its items is, if taken as a whole, such as to tend to deprave and corrupt persons who are likely, having regard to all relevant circumstances, to read, see or hear the matter contained or embodied in it.

(2) In proceedings against a person for an offence under section 491, the question whether the article is obscene is to be determined by reference to such publication as in the circumstances it may reasonably be inferred he had in contemplation and to any further publication that could reasonably be expected to follow from it, but not to any other publication.

(3) For the purposes of this Part a person publishes an article who—

- (a) distributes, circulates, sells, lets on hire, gives, or lends it, or who offers it for sale or for letting on hire; or
- (b) in the case of an article containing or embodying matter to be looked at or a record - shows, plays or projects it, or, if the matter is data stored electronically, transmits the data.

(4) For the purposes of this Part a person also publishes an article to the extent that any matter recorded on it is included by him in a programme included in a programme service.

(5) If the inclusion of any matter in a programme included in a programme service would, if that matter were recorded matter, constitute the publication of an obscene publication for the purposes of this Part by virtue of subsection (4) this Part has effect in relation to the inclusion of that matter in that programme as if it were recorded matter.

(6) References in this Part to publication for gain apply to any publication with a view to gain, whether the gain is to accrue by way of consideration for the publication or in any other way.

Publication and possession of obscene matter.

491.(1) Subject to the following provisions of this section, a person who—

- (a) publishes an obscene publication, whether for gain or not; or
- (b) has in his possession an obscene article for publication for gain (whether gain to himself or gain to another), commits an offence.

- (2) A person who commits an offence under subsection (1) is liable—
- (a) on summary conviction to imprisonment for 12 months or the statutory maximum fine, or both;
 - (b) on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for 3 years.
- (3) A prosecution for an offence against this section may not be commenced more than 2 years after the commission of the offence.
- (4) Regardless of section 158 of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011, summary proceedings for an offence under this section may be brought at any time within 12 months from the commission of the offence.
- (5) Proceedings for an offence under this section may not be commenced except by, or with the consent of, the Attorney-General if the article in question is a moving picture film and the relevant publication or the only other publication which followed or could reasonably have been expected to follow from the relevant publication took place or (as the case may be) was to take place in the course of a film exhibition.
- (6) For the purposes of subsection (5), “the relevant publication” means—
- (a) in the case of any proceedings under this section for publishing an obscene article - the publication in respect of which the defendant would be charged if the proceedings were brought; and
 - (b) in the case of any proceedings under this section for having an obscene article for publication for gain - the publication which, if the proceedings were brought, the defendant would be alleged to have had in contemplation.
- (7) For the purpose of proceedings for an offence under this section, a person is deemed to have in his possession an article for publication for gain if with a view to such publication he has the article in his ownership, possession or control.
- (8) A person may not be convicted of an offence under this section in respect of an article if he proves that he had not examined the article and had no reasonable cause to suspect that it was such that his having it would make him liable to be convicted of an offence against this section.

Negatives, etc. for production of obscene articles.

492.(1) This Part applies in relation to anything which is intended to be used, either alone or as one of a set, for the reproduction or manufacture from it of articles containing or embodying matter to be read, looked at or listened to, as if it were an article containing or embodying that matter so far as that matter is to be derived from it or from the set.

(2) For the purposes of this Part, an article is deemed to be had or kept for publication if it is had or kept for the reproduction or manufacture from it of articles for publication; and the question whether an article so had or kept is obscene is—

- (a) for purposes of section 491 - to be determined as if any reference to publication of an article were a reference to publication of articles reproduced or manufactured from it; and
- (b) for purposes of section 494 - to be determined on the assumption that articles reproduced or manufactured from it would be published in any manner likely having regard to the circumstances in which it was found, but in no other manner.

Common law offence abolished.

493.(1) No proceedings may be brought against a person who publishes an article for an offence at common law which consists of the publication of any matter contained or embodied in the article if it is of the essence of the offence that the matter is obscene.

(2) Without limiting subsection (1), no proceedings may be brought against a person for an offence at common law—

- (a) in respect of a film exhibition or anything said or done in the course of such an exhibition, if it is of the essence of the common law offence that the exhibition or, as the case may be, what was said or done was obscene, indecent, offensive, disgusting or injurious to morality; or

- (b) in respect of an agreement to give a film exhibition or to cause anything to be said or done in the course of such an exhibition if the common law offence consists of conspiring to corrupt public morals or to do any act contrary to public morals or decency.

Powers of search and seizure.

494.(1) If a magistrate is satisfied by information on oath that there are reasonable grounds for suspecting that, in any premises or on any stall or vehicle specified in the information, an obscene article is kept for publication for gain, the magistrate may issue a warrant under his hand empowering any police officer—

- (a) to enter (if need be by force) and search the premises, or to search the stall or vehicle; and
- (b) to seize and remove any article found therein or thereon which the officer has reason to believe to be an obscene article and to be kept for publication for gain.

(2) If any obscene article is seized under a warrant under subsection (1), the warrant, also empowers the seizure and removal of any documents found in the premises or, as the case may be, on the stall or vehicle, which relate to a trade or business carried on at the premises or from the stall or vehicle.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), any article seized under subsection (1) or (2) must be brought before a magistrate, who may issue a summons to the occupier of the premises or, as the case may be, the user of the stall or vehicle to appear on a day specified in the summons before the Magistrates' Court to show cause why the article should not be forfeited.

(4) If on a hearing under subsection (3) the court is satisfied, as respects any article, that at the time when it was seized it was an obscene article kept for publication for gain, the court must order the article to be forfeited.

Forfeiture of seized articles: Supplementary provision.

495.(1) If, when a court is considering the forfeiture of any article that has been seized under section 494, the person summoned under section 494(3) does not appear, the court may not make an order unless service of the summons is proved.

(2) Section 494(4) does not apply in relation to any article seized under section 494 which is returned to the occupier of the premises or, as the case may be, to the user of the stall or vehicle in or on which it was found.

(3) If by virtue of section 491(5) proceedings for an offence under section 491 cannot be instituted except by or with the consent of the Attorney-General, no order for the forfeiture of a publication may be made under section 494 unless the warrant under which the publication was seized was issued on an information laid by or on behalf of the Attorney-General.

(4) In addition to the person summoned under section 494(3)–

- (a) the owner, author or maker of any article brought before the court; and
- (b) any other person through whose hands the article had passed before being seized, is entitled to appear before the court on the day specified in the summons to show cause why the article should not be forfeited.

(5) If an order is made under section 494(4) for the forfeiture of any article, any person who appeared, or was entitled to appear, to show cause against the making of the order may appeal to the Supreme Court, and the order does not take effect until–

- (a) the expiration of the period within which notice of appeal to the Supreme Court may be given against the order; or
- (b) if before the expiration of that period notice of appeal is duly given or application is made for the statement of a case for the opinion of the Supreme Court - until the final determination or abandonment of the proceedings on the appeal or case.

(6) If as respects any article brought before it the court does not order forfeiture, the court may if it thinks fit order the person on whose information the warrant for the seizure of the article was issued to pay such costs as the court thinks reasonable to any person who has appeared before the court to show cause why the article should not be forfeited; and costs ordered to be paid under this subsection are enforceable as a civil debt.

(7) For the purposes of this section, the question whether an article is obscene is to be determined on the assumption that copies of it would be published in any manner likely having regard to the circumstances in which it was found, but in no other manner.

Forfeiture on conviction.

496.(1) If an article is seized under section 494 and a person is convicted under section 491 of having it for publication for gain, the court on his conviction must order the forfeiture of the article.

- (b) addressing it to him and leaving it for him at the appropriate address; or
- (c) addressing it to him and sending it to him at that address by post.

(4) A notice given in accordance with subparagraph (1)(b) may, if it is not practicable to give the notice in accordance with subparagraph (3), be given by—

(3) Service upon a solicitor so specified is to be taken to be service on the claimant for the purposes of any proceedings by virtue of this Schedule.

(4) In a case in which notice of intended forfeiture was given to different persons on different days, the reference in this paragraph to the day on which that notice was given is a reference in relation—

- (b) the requirements of paragraphs 5 and 6 have not been complied with in relation to the only notice or notices of claim that have been given.

(3) Subparagraph (1) applies in relation to a readily separable part of the property as it applies in relation to the property, and for this purpose paragraph (2) applies as if references to the property were to the part.

(4) In this paragraph “readily separable part” has the meaning given by paragraph 1.

Decision whether to take court proceedings to condemn property as forfeited.

8.(1) If a notice of claim in respect of the property, or a part of it, is duly given in accordance with paragraphs 5 and 6, the relevant officer must decide whether to take proceedings to ask the court to condemn the property or a part of it as forfeited.

(2) The decision whether to take such proceedings must be made as soon as reasonably practicable after the giving of the notice of claim.

(4) If the court is satisfied that—

- (a) the relevant property is forfeitable property; and

- (b) a person who has given a notice of claim has a legitimate reason for possessing the relevant property, or that more than one such person has such a reason, the court must order the return of the relevant property to that person or, as the case may be, to one of those persons.

(5) If the court is satisfied that any part of the relevant property is a separable part, subparagraphs (2) to (4) apply separately in relation to each separable part of the relevant property as if references to the relevant property were references to the separable part.

(6) For this purpose a part of any property is a “separable part” of the property if–

- (a) it can be separated from the remainder of that property; and
- (b) if a person has a legitimate reason for possessing the remainder of that property or any part of it - the separation will not prejudice the remainder or part.

(7) If the court is satisfied that–

- (a) a person who has given a notice of claim has a legitimate reason for possessing part of the relevant property; and
- (b) although the part is not a separable part within the meaning given by subparagraph (6), it can be separated from the remainder of the relevant property, the court may order the return of that part to that person.

(3) If the court makes an order under paragraph 10(7) for the return of a part of the relevant property, the court—

- (a) may order the relevant officer to take such steps as it thinks appropriate in relation to any property which will be prejudiced by the separation of that part; and
- (b) if it orders a step to be taken - may make that order conditional on specified costs relating to the taking of that step being paid by a specified person within a specified period.

(4) For the purposes of this paragraph, “specified” means specified in, or determined in accordance with, the court order.

- (b) the property is (without having been returned) still in the custody of the relevant officer after the end of the period of 12 months beginning with the day on which the requirement to return it arose; and
- (c) it is not practicable to dispose of it by returning it immediately to the person to whom it is required to be returned, the relevant officer may dispose of it in any manner he thinks fit.

(2) If property would be required to be returned to a person under this Schedule but for a failure to satisfy a condition imposed by virtue of paragraph 11(2) (return of property conditional on payment of costs within specified period) - the relevant officer may dispose of the property in any manner he thinks fit.

Provisions as to proof.

16.(1) In proceedings under this Schedule, the fact, form and manner of the seizure are to be taken, without further evidence and unless the contrary is shown, to have been as set forth in the process.

(2) In proceedings, the condemnation by a court of property as forfeited under this Schedule may be proved by the production of either—

- (a) the order of condemnation; or

- (b) a certified copy of the order purporting to be signed by an officer of the court by which the order was made or granted.

Saving for owner's rights.

17. Neither the imposition of a requirement by virtue of this Schedule to return property to a person nor the return of it to a person in accordance with such a requirement affects—

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

INTRODUCTION

This Bill updates and consolidates most of the legislation that creates criminal offences in Gibraltar. The Acts which are incorporated in this Bill (and which are repealed by it) are-

Criminal Offences Act,
Drugs (Misuse) Act,
Dangerous Dogs Act 2003,
Crimes (Computer Hacking) Act 2009, and Crimes (Indecent Photographs with Children) Act 2009.

Subsidiary legislation made under the above Acts, and which remains relevant, is saved by the savings and transitional provisions in Part 27.

Many of the offences contained in the Criminal Offences Act have not been amended for several years. Where such provisions are still relevant, they have been restated, having regard to the evolution of the law relating to the provisions. In particular, if statutes creating criminal offences have been amended by subsequent United Kingdom Acts of Parliament, those amendments have been taken into consideration, up to the dissolution of the Parliament at Westminster in April 2010.

The statement of criminal offences and principles in this Bill takes into account modifications required to suit Gibraltar's particular circumstances and modifications required by virtue of Gibraltar's responsibilities vis-à-vis European Union and other international obligations. Where appropriate, the jurisprudence emanating from relevant courts is also reflected in this Bill.

The Bill also codifies some common law offences and enacts a number of new offences, some of which are based on precedents which are not from the United Kingdom.

PART 1 PRELIMINARY

This Part replaces Part I of the Criminal Offences Act.

Clause 2 which provides for the interpretation of various terms contains several new definitions.

An “adult” means a person aged 18 years or more, a “young person” is someone who has attained the age of 14 but is under 18 years of age, and a “child” is someone under 14 years of age. Previously the Criminal Offences Act defined a young person as being under 17 years of age.

PART 2
GENERAL PROVISIONS

This Part covers criminal liability, alternative verdicts, spouses, civil proceedings and corporate liability. It replaces Parts II (Criminal Liability) and VI (Husband and Wife) of the Criminal Offences Act with updated provisions on those topics.

The provisions on civil proceedings and corporate liability are new, but bring together a number of statements of the rules and apply them to all offences.

The Part does not seek to codify common law rules on such matters as drunkenness or mental disorder or mistake of fact or duress or self-defence.

Clauses 3 to 5 deal with criminal liability.

Clause 3 states the age of criminal responsibility in Gibraltar as being 10 years. It was 8 years in the Criminal Offences Act.

Clause 4 is a rule about inferences as to criminal intent.

Clause 5 justifies the use of force in preventing crime or effecting an arrest. It was previously in section 6 of the Criminal Procedure Act, but only in relation to police officers.

Clauses 6 to 13 deal with offences outside Gibraltar.

Clause 6 is the existing rule about extraterritorial jurisdiction, based on the common law.

Clauses 7 to 11 make extended provisions about extraterritorial jurisdiction in relation to offences of dishonesty, conspiracy, encouraging or assisting and attempts.

These provisions do not affect the operation of any specific rules about jurisdiction that apply to particular offences under any provision of the Act.

The terms 'Group A offence' and 'Group B offence' are defined in clause 2 of the Bill. The Group B offences involve more than one person so that different rules about jurisdiction might apply. These offences are set out in clause 7 and the list can be amended by the Minister.

Clauses 14 and 15 deal with alternative verdicts.

Clause 14 replaces section 10 of the Criminal Offences Act with a more general provision. Subclause (6) sets out the rule that applies to alternative verdicts in murder cases. Subclause (7) retains provisions from section 10 of the Criminal Offences Act which are relevant.

Clause 15 is the rule about convicting as an accessory which was in section 9 of the Criminal Offences Act.

The power is not available to magistrates on summary trial. Note that there is no power to return alternative verdicts on summary trials under these 2 clauses, though there might be such a power in relation to specific offences if conferred by the relevant provision.

Clauses 16 to 21 are miscellaneous provisions.

Clause 16 applies to proceedings between married persons and uses the term 'spouses' rather than 'husband and wife' so as to be gender-neutral and simpler.

Clause 18 is a general rule about corporate liability applicable to all offences capable of being committed by a corporate body, or by an individual officer on behalf of a body.

Clause 19 abrogates the common law requirement for corroboration in relation to the evidence of the complainant in a sexual offence case or the evidence of a child. It makes savings in relation to other warnings to the jury about other types of evidence. The clause applies equally to summary trials.

Clause 20 abolishes the offences of sedition and seditious libel, defamatory libel and obscene libel.

Clause 21 makes provision for service of documents which supplements the provision in section 8 of the Interpretation and General Clauses Act.

PART 3
INCHOATE OFFENCES

This Part deals with the topics of attempts, conspiracy, encouraging or assisting offences and accessories. It replaces Parts III (Attempts and Cognate Offences), IV (Conspiracy) and V (Accessories) of the Criminal Offences Act with updated provisions on those topics. It also includes new provisions about encouraging and assisting offenders.

Clauses 22 to 26 deal with attempts.

Clauses 22 to 26 replace section 7 of the Criminal Offences Act and expand the law on attempts.

In Clause 22 the term ‘indictable offence’ includes offences triable either way - see the definition in clause 2 of the Bill.

Clause 24 applies to provisions in enactments passed after this Act, but the acts alleged to constitute an attempt must have taken place before the commencement of the Part.

Clauses 27 to 35 deal with conspiracy.

This Part replaces the provisions of Part IV of the Criminal Offences Act which was based on the UK Criminal Law Act 1977. That Act has been amended by various recent Acts and this Part takes account of those changes and includes conspiracy to commit crimes outside Gibraltar (clause 28); conspiracy to defraud (clause 34); and the abolition of incitement to conspiracy (clause 35).

There are transitional provisions relating to these changes in Part 27 (Supplementary Provisions).

Clause 28 extends jurisdiction outside Gibraltar in respect of conspiracies to commit offences abroad.

Clause 29 provides general exemptions to liability for conspiracy to commit an offence.

Clause 30 specifies the maximum sentences for conspiracy, in relation to the relevant offence, whether that is indictable or summary. Conspiracy itself is triable only on indictment, however.

Clauses 31, 32, and 33 restate rules already provided for in sections 14 to 16 of the Criminal Offences Act.

Clause 34 creates the separate offence of conspiracy to defraud.

Clause 35 includes some provisions that are not in the Criminal Offences Act but are relevant to Gibraltar. They include the abolition of common law conspiracy, including incitement.

Clauses 36 to 46 create the new offence of encouraging or assisting offences. They abolish the common law offence of incitement and in its place create 3 new offences.

Clause 36 creates 3 new offences—

- (i) intentionally encouraging or assisting an offence;
- (ii) encouraging or assisting an offence believing it will be committed;
- (iii) encouraging or assisting offences believing that one or more will be committed.

For a subsection (1) offence a person must do an act capable of encouraging or assisting the commission of an offence and intend to encourage or assist its commission. Subclause (2) makes it clear that foresight of consequences is not sufficient.

A subsection (3) offence is committed if a person does an act capable of encouraging or assisting an offence and believes both that the offence will be committed and that his act will encourage or assist its commission.

For a subsection (4) offence a person must do an act capable of encouraging or assisting one or more offences believing that one or more offences will be committed and that his act will encourage or assist one or more of them.

Clause 37 sets out what needs to be proved to establish guilt for each of the offences in clause 36.

Clause 38 makes supplemental provisions.

Subclause (1) provides that the offences can be committed regardless of whether or not the encouragement or assistance has the effect which the defendant intended or believed it would have.

Subclause (2) provides that if a person's act is capable of encouraging or assisting a number of criminal offences, and he either intends or believes that each of those offences will happen, he can be prosecuted and convicted in relation to every offence that he intends to encourage or assist, or believes will be encouraged or assisted.

Subclause (3) provides that a person may, in relation to the same act, commit an offence under more than one provision of section 36.

Subclause (4) provides that a person cannot be guilty of encouraging or assisting an offence under section 36(2) or (3) believing that an offence under that section or a similar offence of encouraging or assisting etc. will happen. This means it will not be an offence to encourage or assist another person believing that that person will commit the offence of encouraging or assisting another to commit an offence.

Subclause (5) provides that the requirement that a person believes that a criminal offence, or a number of criminal offences, be committed is satisfied if he believes that the criminal offence, or that one or more criminal offences, would be done if certain conditions are met.

Clause 39 provides two defences. Subclause (1) provides that it will be a defence that the defendant acted reasonably, in the circumstances he was aware of, or in the circumstances he reasonably believed existed. Subclause (4) incorporates a common law exemption from liability relating to "protected" persons. A person cannot be guilty of the offences in section 36 if, in relation to an offence that is a "protective" offence, the person who does the act capable of encouraging or assisting that offence falls within the category of persons that offence was designed to protect and would be considered as the victim.

Clause 40 provides the rules that will govern jurisdiction over the offences in section 36. A person may be convicted of the offences in section 36, regardless of his own location, if he knew or believed that the act which would amount to the commission of an offence would take place, at least in part, in Gibraltar. If it is not possible to establish the circumstances required for jurisdiction to arise under subsection (1), it may be possible to convict a person of an offence under section 36 if the facts of the case fall within section 41. The general jurisdictional rules for section 36 offences do not affect any specific jurisdictional rules which already exist for certain offences on the statute book.

Clause 41 confers extended jurisdiction in certain cases.

Subclause (1) confers jurisdiction where a person does an act in Gibraltar, capable of encouraging or assisting an offence, and knows or believes that what he anticipates might take place outside Gibraltar but the offence is one for which a perpetrator could be tried in Gibraltar if the anticipated offence were committed outside Gibraltar, or relevant conditions exist that would make it so triable.

Subclause (3) confers jurisdiction where a person does an act in Gibraltar, capable of encouraging or assisting an offence, and knows or believes that what he anticipates might take place in outside Gibraltar but what he anticipates is also an offence under the law in force there.

Subclause (8) confers jurisdiction where a person does an act outside Gibraltar, capable of encouraging or assisting an offence, and knows or believes that what he anticipates might take place outside Gibraltar but the offence is one for which it would be possible to prosecute the person who provides encouragement or assistance in Gibraltar if he were to commit the offence as a principal in that place.

Clause 42 relates to the institution and conduct of proceedings. Subclause (1) provides that any ancillary powers that apply to a substantive offence will apply to an offence of encouraging and assisting that substantive offence e.g. consent to proceedings, forfeiture, etc..

Subclause (4) provides that the mode of trial for an offence under section 36(1) and (3) will be determined as if the person had been charged with committing the anticipated offence as a principal. An offence under section 36(4) will be tried on indictment.

Subclauses (6) to (9) allows for a derogation from the rule that a person providing information society services from an EEA State other than Gibraltar may not be proceeded against under clause 36, as permitted by Directive 2000/31/EC – the E-commerce Directive. The effect is that although internet service providers should be regulated by the law of the country in which they are established even when operating in other countries, a non-Gibraltar internet service provider could be prosecuted for the offences under section 36 if there is a public policy reason underlying the prosecution.

Clause 43 provides that if an anticipated offence has been committed and it cannot be proved whether a person has either encouraged or assisted the offence on the one hand, or committed the offence as a principal on the other, he can be convicted of an offence under section 36.

Clause 44 specifies the offences in relation to which a person may be found guilty as an alternative where he has been prosecuted on indictment for an offence under section 36. This is to produce the same effect as the rules in relation to alternative verdicts in relation to a trial on indictment for the offences encouraged or assisted.

Subclause (10) provides that a person may plead guilty to an offence which would be encompassed by the offence with which he was charged.

Clause 45 prescribes the penalties that will apply to the offences created in section 36. The maximum penalty for encouraging and assisting an offence of murder is imprisonment for life. The general rule is that the maximum penalty available for an offence under section 36 will be the same as the maximum available on conviction for the relevant anticipated or reference offence. If none of the offences is punishable by imprisonment then the maximum sentence will be a fine.

Clause 46 abolishes the common law offence of incitement, as it is replaced by the provisions of sections 36 to 45.

Clauses 47 to 49 deal with accessories.

Clause 47(1) restates the rule in section 17 of the Criminal Offences Act. It includes the word 'suborns' so that subornation of perjury will be an offence. The word 'indictable' is added as subclause (2) applies to summary offences.

Subclause (2) states the same principle in relation to summary offences.

Subclause (3) provides that aiding and abetting an offence triable either way is itself triable either way.

Clause 48 is based on section 18 of the Criminal Offences Act (Penalties for assisting offenders), but omitting the words "or attempts" as an attempt is itself an offence. It is still an offence, separate from encouraging etc.

Clause 49 restates the offence of concealing an offence and giving false information to the police. It is made triable either way.

PART 4 TREASON OFFENCES

This Part replaces the provisions of Part VII of the Criminal Offences Act which state the statute and common law on treason and sedition as applied to Gibraltar. As sedition has been abolished (see clause 20 above) the Part only has 4 clauses relating to treason. They cover treason itself, treasonable offences (formerly called treason felonies) and assaults on the Queen. They are all governed by ancient statutes dating back to the Treason Act of 1351.

Treason is triable only on indictment, but assaults on the Queen can be tried summarily – clause 53(2).

PART 5 PUBLIC ORDER

Part 5 replaces Part VIII of the Criminal Offences Act. It restates in modern terms Part VIII.

The Part creates statutory offences of riot, affray etc. to replace the common law offences (clauses 55 to 61). It gives the police more detailed powers to control processions and assemblies (62 to 65) and creates an offence of trespassory assembly (66 to 68). It also creates offences relating to the phenomenon known as a ‘rave’.

The Part regulates the wearing of disguises (74 and 75) and the wearing of uniforms (78 and 79). It also creates a new offence of contamination of or interference with goods and links it to the existing bomb hoaxes offence as an offence of causing public alarm or anxiety (76 and 77).

The Part restates the laws about breaches of the peace that are in the existing Part VIII.

In addition to this Part on public order, the Bill has separate Parts on criminal trespass, including camping (Part 22), on protection from harassment (Part 6) and on racial or religious hatred (Part 7). Offensive weapons are also dealt with separately (Part 8), as are explosive substances (Part 9).

The Part does not include a power of arrest without warrant for public order offences. This power is contained in the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011. Powers of entry, search and seizure are included, however.

PART 6
PROTECTION FROM HARASSMENT

This Part introduces new material that is not in the Criminal Offences Act. It is intended to protect people from abusive neighbours, from hate mail or racial insults, or even excessive adulation.

Clause 88 makes it an offence for a person, with intent to cause harassment, alarm or distress, to use threatening, abusive or insulting words or behaviour or disorderly behaviour, or to display any writing or sign which is threatening, abusive or insulting, if the conduct causes another person harassment, alarm or distress.

Clause 89 creates a stricter offence which does not depend on intention, but for which there is a defence of reasonableness.

Both offences require the harassing effect to be outside a building, although the conduct may be inside. Clause 90 specifies the mental element involved in the clause 89 offence. The Clause 88 offence has its own specific intent rule.

Clauses 91 and 92 create an offence of pursuing a course of conduct which amounts to harassment. The term ‘course of conduct’ means on at least 2 occasions – see the definition in clause 87.

Clause 93 provides for civil redress for a victim.

Clause 94 creates a more serious offence of pursuing a course of conduct which puts people in fear of violence. It carries a maximum penalty of 5 years imprisonment on indictment.

Clause 95 empowers a court to impose a restraining order on a person convicted of an offence under clause 92 or 94.

Clause 96 creates the offence of sending letters intended to cause distress or anxiety and is a summary offence.

Clause 97 makes it an offence to send offensive, indecent, obscene, threatening or false messages by phone, fax or over the internet.

PART 7
RACIAL OR RELIGIOUS HATRED OFFENCES

This Part introduces new offences dealing with the expression of racial or religious hatred. They are related to public order offences, as the purpose is to prevent public displays of racial or religious abuse which might lead to public disturbances. However, as the offences cover several topics – assaults, damage, public order and harassment – they are grouped together in one Part. It includes some provisions that are in the Criminal Offences Act.

The Part has two main groups of offences – racial or religious hatred offences, and racially aggravated offences.

The first group (clauses 99 to 111) concerns the commission of the offence through various forms of conduct, the publication of material or through public performances.

There is a saving for freedom of religious expression (clause 111) which requires that the Part be read in the light of what is reasonably justified in a democratic society (as in section 9(5) of the Gibraltar Constitution).

The second group (clauses 112 to 117) concerns offences where a racial element is present in the commission of the offence.

The racially aggravated offences (112 to 117) appear at first sight to place defendants in double jeopardy for the same offence. However, as the penalties for the aggravated offence are higher than those for the basic offence in each case, the legislative scheme is that a person can either be prosecuted for the ‘basic’ offence i.e. criminal damage, assault, public order or harassment, or for the aggravated offence. If the court does not find the aggravated offence proved, it can still convict on the ‘basic’ offence - see clause 117 on alternative verdicts.

There are also search and seizure provisions in clause 105.

PART 8
OFFENSIVE WEAPONS

This Part replaces the provisions on offensive weapons that were in Part VIII (Public Order) of the Criminal Offences Act. There are new provisions in relation to knives, in particular the restriction of their sale to persons under 18.

Clause 119 prohibits the marketing of knives in a way which encourages their use for combat.

Clause 120 prohibits the publication of material that promotes knives for the purposes of combat.

Clauses 121 and 122 provide for the exemption of certain trades and for other defences. Under clause 121(3) the Minister may prescribe categories of knives that are exempt.

Clause 123 relates specifically to flick knives.

Clause 124 prohibits the sale of knives, and certain articles with a blade or point to persons under 18.

Clause 125 includes powers of entry and seizure and retention similar to those in the Public Order Part. The word 'implement' is added to include items to which clauses 123(1) and 124(2) apply i.e. axes etc.

Clauses 126 and 127 relate to the forfeiture of knives and other items liable to forfeiture.

Clauses 128 and 129 distinguish between pocket knives with blades under 3 inches and those with longer blades.

Clauses 129 and 130 make particular provision for knives in schools and allows a police officer to enter schools and conduct searches.

Clause 131 contains a reverse onus provision as to lawful authority or reasonable excuse.

Clause 132 prohibits dealing in offensive weapons. It is wider than clause 123 about knives but requires the Minister to make an order defining the weapons to which the section will apply.

Clauses 133 and 134 enable the Commissioner of Police to authorise officers to stop and search pedestrians and vehicles for weapons in anticipation of violence.

PART 9 EXPLOSIVE SUBSTANCES

Part XI of the Criminal Offences Act has some provisions relating to explosive substances. It also has a provision in Part VIII (Public Order). There are provisions relating to explosive substances in the English Law (Application) Act which applies sections 1 to 8 of the UK Explosive Substances Act 1883, and in the Criminal Jurisdiction Act 1975, which replaced sections 2 and 3 of the 1883 Act. There are also local regulatory offences relating to storage of explosives etc. in the Explosives Act.

In order to clarify the law, most of the criminal offences relating to explosive substances that are currently law in Gibraltar are now drawn together into a separate Part. The offence of causing an explosive substance to explode near Her Majesty in section 24 of the Criminal Offences Act is dealt with in the Part on Treason Offences. Section 180 on aggravated burglary is also dealt with separately. The Explosives Act will continue to apply on its own terms.

Clause 135 contains definitions. It defines ‘explosive substance’ as in section 9 of the 1883 Act. It defines ‘explosive’ by reference to the Explosives Act and incorporates the power to extend that definition. It also defines ‘manufacture’ by reference to the Explosives Act.

Clause 136 is based on section 83 of the Criminal Offences Act creates an indictable-only offence involving the causing of grievous bodily harm. The maximum penalty is imprisonment for life.

Clauses 137 to 139 are respectively based on sections 84, 85 and 43 of the Criminal Offences Act.

Clause 137 creates an indictable-only offence involving the causing of bodily harm. The maximum penalty is imprisonment for life.

In Clause 138 bodily harm need only be intended, not caused, as subclause (2) makes clear. The offence is indictable only and carries a sentence of 14 years.

Clause 139 is wider than explosives and inter alia covers other dangerous or noxious things held by a person so as to enable another to commit an offence.

Clause 140 creates the offence of endangering life or damaging property by means of an explosion. It carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

Clause 141 relates to acts which are preparatory in nature.

Clause 142 is about possession (cf. clause 136) but limited to explosive substances. The word 'knowingly' is included because case law shows that knowledge must be stated in the indictment. See also 136 on this point.

Clause 143 is about accessories. It includes subclause (2) to enact the rule about aiding and abetting in R. v. McCarthy, 48 Cr. App. R. 111 and Mok Wei Tak v. R 1990 2 A.C. 333 PC.

Clause 144 is a form of inquest, rather than a trial and enables the Minister to direct the magistracy to conduct an inquiry. It only applies to offences under clauses 140 to 142.

Clause 146 is more concerned with the safety of ships than with explosives, and the term 'dangerous goods' is used instead. It is included for completeness as the rule it states about liability is an important protection for masters and owners of ships.

Clause 147 deals with the seizure and detention of explosives liable to forfeiture.

Clause 148 is a general power of forfeiture.

PART 10 OFFENCES AGAINST THE PERSON

The offences covered by the Part range from genocide to common assault and include infanticide, wounding with intent, occasioning actual bodily harm, child abduction, kidnapping and torture. It replaces Part XI of the Criminal Offences Act.

The provisions in Part XI of the Criminal Offences Act relating to explosives, harassment, and racially aggravated offences now appear in separate Parts with other provisions on those topics. The offence of genocide is dealt with in the International Criminal Court Act 2007.

Clauses 149 to 153 restate in modern language the common law offences of murder and manslaughter which are made statutory in the existing Criminal Offences Act. Provocation as a defence to murder is replaced by clause 152 which provides a partial defence of loss of control.

Clause 153 defines manslaughter and specifies the sentence of life imprisonment. The common law rules will still determine the scope of manslaughter.

Clause 154 deals with murder or manslaughter outside Gibraltar.

Clauses 155 to 164 create other offences of causing or threatening death, including complicity in suicide, infanticide and child destruction.

Clauses 165 to 172 relate to activities that could endanger life, such as wounding with intent, or simple wounding.

Clauses 173 and 174 retain the offences of setting spring guns and furious driving.

Clauses 175 to 182 reorganise the sequence of assault offences. Common assault comes first, followed by specific assaults, then actual bodily harm, ending with aggravated assaults. Clause 175(3) states the common law rule about binding over and recognisances which applies to all assaults.

The use of 'complaint' in clauses 181 to 182 implies that assault is only a civil action, which it is not; but it is sometimes brought by a private person so is hybrid in nature.

Clause 183 creates the offence of causing or allowing the death of a child or vulnerable adult.

Clauses 184 to 188 are about child abduction.

Clause 189 creates as statutory offences the common law offences of kidnapping and false imprisonment. The kidnapping offence at (1) is based on the common law offence as in R. v. D. (1984) A.C.778. The false imprisonment offence at (2) is based on the common law offence as in R. v. Rahman (1985) 81 Cr. App. R.349.

Clause 190 creates the offence of torture and is required by the extension to Gibraltar of the UN Convention against Torture and other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment of 1985.

Clause 191 makes it an offence to keep someone in slavery, servitude or forced or compulsory labour.

PART 11 CORPORATE MANSLAUGHTER

This Part creates the new statutory offence of corporate manslaughter. It covers cases where death is caused by the activities of a corporation, where the civil remedy in negligence is inadequate, but where individuals cannot be singled out for prosecution.

For purposes of this Part, a corporation includes –

- (a) any government department that is not exempted by the Minister under the power in clause 192(2);
- (b) the police force;
- (c) a partnership;
- (d) a trade union; or
- (e) an employers' association that is not a corporation.

Any statutory provision about criminal proceedings applies in relation to proceedings under this Part against a corporation as so defined.

The Part defines Crown to mean both the Gibraltar and United Kingdom Governments.

Clause 196 excludes activities of the armed forces. Clauses 197 to 199 limits the application of the Part where certain policing or law enforcement, emergencies or child protection activities are concerned.

Clauses 201 to 203 state how the Part applies to certain other activities.

Clause 204 gives the court a power to order a convicted corporation to take steps to remedy matters that gave rise to the death and also (clause 205) order that publicity be given to a corporation's conviction for an offence.

The offences are indictable only and the penalty is an unlimited fine. Common law manslaughter by corporations is abolished.

Common law liability for manslaughter by gross negligence is abolished (clause 209).

The Minister is given power to amend the scope of the Part by order – see clauses 210 and 211.

PART 12 SEXUAL OFFENCES

Part 12 replaces Part XII of the Criminal Offences Act.

A significant feature of the Part is that sex offences are now gender-neutral in that they can be committed by either sex on the other. The Part also establishes equality of age between the sexes, so the age of 16 is the age for consent as between persons of the same sex as well as between the sexes.

Clause 212 provides definitions of terms used in the Part.

Clauses 213 to 215 create the main sexual offences against persons of 16 or over. They include rape, assault by penetration, sexual assault and causing a person to engage in sexual activity without consent.

Clauses 217 to 220 create the offences of rape, assault etc. against a child under the age of 13. Clauses 221 to 224 create offences in relation to all children aged under 16. It will be an offence to penetrate or have other sexual relations with a child under 13, irrespective of consent. The existing offence of unlawful sexual intercourse is therefore expanded to include boys, to include sexual activity short of penetration, and to apply to children up to the age of 16 if the offender is aged 18 or over.

Clause 225 prescribes lower penalties for the offences in clauses 221 to 224 when committed by persons under 18.

Clause 226 creates a new offence of arranging or facilitating sexual activity by children under 16. The defence in (2) as amplified by (3) is to cover the situation where e.g. a health worker knows that someone intends to have sex with a child, and does not condone it but provides the person with a condom so that the sex will at least be protected.

Clause 227 creates a new offence of meeting a child following sexual grooming.

Clauses 226 and 227 include an extraterritorial element i.e. they relate to an intention to commit a crime anywhere in the world. The intended activity must be one that, whether or not it is a crime in the local jurisdiction, would be a crime in Gibraltar. So an intention to engage in or arrange sexual activity with a child under 13 in another country would be caught, because the activity would also be a crime in Gibraltar. The converse is that a person who goes to another country to arrange sex tours to Gibraltar in relation to children between 13 and 16 would be committing an offence in Gibraltar (and could be prosecuted on their return) but might not be committing an offence in that country if the age of consent there is 13.

Clauses 228 to 233 create offences by persons in a position of trust in who abuse the trust by engaging in sexual activity with a child etc.

Clause 234 provides an exception for a spouse in relation to certain offences. They say that the exception applies if the 2 people concerned are married, and if the victim is over 16 (since the age of marriage in Gibraltar is 16).

Clause 235 provides an exception in cases where the sexual relationship existed prior to the position of trust arising.

Clauses 236 to 240 deal with child sex offences in the family context, including child incest. Some terms are taken from the Children Act 2009.

Clauses 241 to 244 make it an offence for any person to engage in sexual activity with a person with a mental disability that impedes choice.

Clauses 245 to 248 create various others in relation to persons with a mental disorder, including offering inducements etc. to procure sexual activity.

Clauses 249 to 252 make it an offence for a care worker to engage in sexual activity with a person with a mental disorder and create other sexual offences by care workers in relation to persons in their care. Clauses 253 to 255 are ancillary provisions.

Clauses 256 to 266 (except 262) were originally enacted as the Crimes (Indecent Photographs with Children) Act 2009 in relation to the pornographic elements. The elements related to prostitution are new.

Clauses 256 to 261 make it an offence to take or possess or publish indecent photographs of children.

Clauses 262 to 266 create offences relating to the abuse of children through prostitution and pornography.

Clauses 267 to 274 create various offences relating to prostitution, such as causing or encouraging or assisting prostitution for gain, controlling prostitution for gain, paying for sexual services of a prostitute subjected to force and loitering or soliciting for the purposes of prostitution and the new offence of prostitution.

Clause 272 creates a new offence of soliciting prostitution, so that the previous offence of kerb-crawling is now a general offence which can be committed by either sex.

Clause 274 makes prostitution an offence in Gibraltar. It consists of the voluntary selling of sexual services in any context other than marriage or an enduring family relationship.

Clauses 275 to 279 create offences relating to the keeping of a brothel and permitting premises to be used as a brothel

Clauses 280 to 286 create offences relating to sex trafficking into, within, and out of Gibraltar. The definition of 'relevant offence' in 283 limits the prohibited conduct to conduct which would be an offence if committed in Gibraltar; it does not include all conduct which is an offence in another country.

Clauses 287 to 289 create certain preparatory offences such as administering a substance with intent to stupefy.

Clauses 290 and 291 create the offence of incest i.e. sexual relations with an adult relative. The list of prohibitions is limited to direct blood relationships, and is similar to the proscribed degrees of relationship for marriage. (Note that clause 236 deals with all sexual activity with children of the family, while 290 deals only with penetration by and of adults.)

Clauses 292 to 297 create certain other sexual offences, including bestiality and sexual penetration of a corpse. Clause 291 adds the word 'genital' to 'exposure' to make the nature of the offence clear. The word 'indecent' is not used because of its uncertainty.

Clauses 298 to 303 are miscellaneous provisions. They deal with certain offences outside Gibraltar, exceptions to aiding, abetting and counselling, and the meaning of "consent" for purposes of the Part. There is a presumption in clause 302 that a person did not consent if misled by deception or impersonation.

PART 13 SEX OFFENDERS (NOTIFICATION AND ORDERS)

Part 13 is a new Part that does not appear in the Criminal Offences Act. It provides for the creation of what is commonly known as a 'sex offenders register', though that term is not used in the Part. It also introduces various types of order that can be used to protect children from sex predators.

The Part creates a notification regime for all sex offenders and empowers courts to impose notification orders, sexual offences prevention orders (SOPOs), foreign travel orders and risk of sexual harm orders (RSHOs) on certain offenders.

The Part provides that offences committed outside Gibraltar and committed before the commencement of the Part are to be taken into account. It provides that in addition to sentences of fines or imprisonment, community service orders for 120 hours or more, conditional discharges, probation orders and cautions are to be taken into account. Absolute discharges do not count as convictions, however.

Clause 305 defines various terms used in the Part that are not defined in clause 2.

Clauses 306 to 312 impose notification requirements on offenders in respect of all sexual offences committed in Gibraltar. They set out the requirements for notification, and what the notification must include. Notification must be given to the police after a conviction, and every year for the duration of the requirement. Notification must also be given of certain changes, and of any proposed travel outside Gibraltar.

Clause 306 specifies as persons who are subject to notification requirements those who have been convicted of an offence listed in Schedule 3.

Clause 307 specifies the period for which the notification requirement continues. Probation orders are not mentioned, so they would come under the last item - 'a person of any other description'. This would also include someone convicted but sentenced only to community service or attendance at an attendance centre.

Clause 308 specifies the details that are to be given in a notification, including the offender's social insurance number.

Clause 312 enables notification to be given at any police station in Gibraltar, on a form to be approved by the Minister.

Clauses 313 and 314 provide that in the case of young offenders, the notification must be given by a parent, who can also apply for a variation or discharge of the order.

Clause 315 makes it an offence to fail to give notification when and as required.

Clause 316 is about certification. It contemplates that when dealing with a Schedule 3 offence the presiding officer will, in addition to announcing the decision of the court in the usual way at the end of a case, state that the offence is a Schedule 3 offence.

Clauses 317 to 320 relate to the supply of information to and by the Minister and to other courts. In Clause 320 and elsewhere the term 'magistrate' is used rather than 'justice of the peace'.

Clauses 321 to 325 provide for the making of notification orders in respect of sexual offences committed outside Gibraltar if the offender is in or intends to come to Gibraltar). They specify the grounds on which a notification order can be sought, and its effect, and provide for interim notification orders and appeals.

Clauses 326 to 332 empower a court to make a sexual offences prevention order (SOPO) if the court is satisfied that it is necessary to make such an order for the purpose of protecting the public or any particular members of the public from serious sexual harm from the person. A SOPO prohibits the defendant from doing anything described in the order and has effect for not less than 5 years. The only prohibitions that may be included in the order are those necessary for the purpose of protecting the public or any particular members of the public from serious sexual harm from the defendant.

Clauses 333 to 339 empower a court to make a foreign travel order on a qualifying offender, prohibiting the person from travelling outside Gibraltar. The court must be satisfied that the defendant's behaviour makes it necessary to make the order for the purpose of protecting children generally or any child under 16 from serious sexual harm from the defendant outside Gibraltar. 'Sexual harm' means serious physical or psychological harm caused by the defendant doing, outside Gibraltar, anything which would constitute a sexual offence if done in Gibraltar.

Clause 340 empowers a court to make an entry prohibition order on a person who is not a Gibraltarian if it appears to the court that the defendant is a qualifying offender and that it is necessary for such an order to be made for the purpose of protecting children generally or any child from serious sexual harm from the defendant in Gibraltar.

The order prohibits the defendant from entering Gibraltar and has the effect of declaring the person to be a prohibited immigrant for the purposes of the Immigration, Asylum and Refugee Act.

Clauses 341 to 347 empower a court to make a risk of sexual harm order (RSHO) on a person in Gibraltar who has on at least 2 occasions engaged in sexual activity involving a child or in the presence of a child; caused or encouraged or assisted a child to watch a person engaging in sexual activity or to look at a sexual moving or still image; given a child anything that relates to sexual activity or contains a reference to such activity; or communicated with a child in a sexual manner. The court must be satisfied that it is necessary to make the order for the purpose of protecting children generally or any child from physical or psychological harm caused by the defendant doing the acts mentioned. A person on whom a RSHO is made becomes liable to the notification requirements of sections 306 to 312.

The Part provides for the Attorney-General to be the complainant in an application for an order under this Part, or for a parental direction. (A complaint is the normal method for launching a civil action in the Magistrates' Court.)

All the orders that can be made under this Part can be the subject of applications for variation, renewal or discharge, and there can be appeals from the making of them. The appeal would be heard by the court that hears appeals from verdicts and sentences in the normal way i.e. the Supreme Court if the court of first instance was the Magistrates' Court, or the Court of Appeal if it was the Supreme Court. The Attorney-General does not have a right to appeal against a refusal of an order. However the Attorney-General does have a right to apply to the Supreme Court for a review of a Magistrates' Court order under section 17 of the Supreme Court Act.

Clauses 348 to 352 are miscellaneous provisions.

Clause 348 empowers the Minister to amend the Schedules and clause 349 provides interpretation of them.

Clause 257 deals with the situation where an order can only be made if the offence passes a certain threshold or sentencing condition.

Clause 351 provides that orders made on mentally disordered offenders are equivalent to sentences for certain purposes.

Clause 352 sets out rules of equivalence as between detention and probation orders and other sentences. Equivalence does not apply to attendance centres as the maximum that can be ordered is 36 hours.

This Part is supplemented by Schedules 3 and 4.

Schedule 3 lists the sexual offences that attract the requirements for notification. They include offences under the Criminal Offences Act repealed by this Bill.

Schedule 4 lists other offences that are relevant for the making of a SOPO under clauses 326 and 327. Hijacking and other anti-terrorism laws are included as the Schedule seeks to include all offences which show a propensity for violence towards people, particularly women and children, which might mean that a person convicted of them could pose a sexual danger to people in Gibraltar. They are relevant in the context of clause 326 and 327 to determine whether a person is a 'qualifying offender' for the making of a SOPO.

PART 14
CRIMINAL DAMAGE

This Part replaces Part XV of the Criminal Offences Act except for the provisions on camping and trespass which are included in Part 22 on Criminal Trespass.

The Part is based on sections 159 to 164 of the Criminal Offences Act.

Clause 353 defines ‘property’, based on section 157 of the Criminal Offences Act. The term ‘damage’ is not defined; it has been defined in case law to mean not only permanent or temporary physical harm, but also permanent or temporary impairment of value or usefulness.

Clause 354 creates two offences – the basic offence of causing damage with intent to cause damage, and the aggravated offence of intending to endanger life. The first offence is triable summarily but the second is not, as the penalty is life imprisonment.

Clause 355 creates arson as a separate offence. In the Criminal Offences Act it is combined with 354 as an aspect of the main offences, but it is a separate offence and is subject to a separate count on an indictment. It is triable only on indictment.

Clauses 356 (Threats to destroy or damage property), clause 357 (Possessing anything with intent to destroy or damage property), clause 358 (Lawful excuse) and clause 359 (Damaging gardens) are based on sections 160, 161, 162 and 164 of the Criminal Offences Act.

PART 15
COMPUTER MISUSE

This Part was originally enacted as the Crimes (Computer Hacking) Act 2009. It criminalises the various forms of computer abuse, unauthorised access to computer data and other attacks against information systems. The Part also transposes into the law of Gibraltar part of Council Framework Decision 2005/222/JHA of 24 February 2005 on attacks against information systems and implements the 2001 Council of Europe Convention on Cybercrime.

Clause 362 makes it an offence for a person knowingly to have unauthorised access to any program or data held in a computer. Clause 363 makes it an offence for a person to access a computer program or data with intent to commit or facilitate the commission of another offence for which the sentence is fixed by law or a sentence of at least 5 years imprisonment.

Clause 364 makes it an offence for a person to do an act, whether temporary or permanent, which he knows will cause an impairment of the operation of a computer or any program or data held in a computer or an impairment of the reliability or the authenticity of any such data. Clause 365 makes it an offence for a person knowingly to intercept any non-public transmission from a computer without authority.

Clause 366 makes it an offence for any person to produce, sell or procure for use any device, program or data which is designed or adapted with the intention that it should be used to commit any other offence under this Part.

Clause 367 makes it an offence for any person, knowingly and without authority, to disclose any password or access code of a computer that is capable of being accessed, with the intention that it be used by any person for the purpose of committing an offence.

Clause 368 punishes as an offence any aiding and abetting of the commission of any other offence under this Part.

Clauses 369 to 373 provide for the territorial scope of offences under this Part. It is irrelevant whether the offender is a Gibraltarian, provided he or the computer was in Gibraltar at the material time.

Clause 374 empowers a magistrate to issue a search warrant to a police officer, who, upon executing it, may seize any computer or computer program or data if he believes it is evidence that an offence has been committed or is about to be committed.

Clause 375 allows a police officer to have access to any computer, or any program or data held in any computer, and to require any person concerned to assist him in his investigations. Clause 376 requires the police officer to make and deliver to the person in charge of a computer a record of the seized articles.

Clause 377 enables the Magistrates' Court to order the preservation of data if data stored in a computer is required for the purposes of a criminal investigation; and if there is a risk that the data may be destroyed or rendered inaccessible or modified.

Clause 378 enables the Magistrates' Court to order the interception of traffic data required for a criminal investigation.

Clauses 379 to 381 empower the Magistrates' Court to order production of data required for the purpose of a criminal investigation or criminal proceedings; to authorise a police officer to collect or record traffic data associated with a specified communication during a specified period if there are reasonable grounds to suspect that traffic data is required for the purposes of a criminal investigation; and to order internet service providers to intercept electronic communications and data traffic where necessary for criminal investigations.

Clause 382 makes it an offence for an internet provider to disclose the fact that the powers under clauses 378 to 381 have been used, or any information given by the provider in response to a notice or order under those powers. An internet provider is not liable for the disclosure of any information given in response to such a notice or order.

Clause 383 gives law enforcement officers the powers of inspection, search and seizure notwithstanding the requirement for consent under clause 362(1).

Clause 384 prescribes the penalties for offences by way of terms of imprisonment and fines. Those for corporate bodies are set out in clause 385.

Clause 386 empowers a court to order the forfeiture of a computer and other articles used in connection with an offence. Clause 387 enables a court to make an order for payment of compensation by the offender to any person for damage caused to that person's computer or any program or data held in his computer.

Clause 388 creates an offence of unauthorised disclosure of information obtained during the course of an investigation or of information received from the competent authorities of a Party to the Convention for the purposes of or to assist in the investigation of offences.

Clause 389 provides for the issue of Codes of Practice by the Minister with responsibility for justice. The codes will relate to the exercise of powers and duties under this Part.

PART 16
THEFT AND FRAUD

Part 16 replaces Part XVI of the Criminal Offences Act (Offences of Dishonesty).

Clauses 392 to 396 define the terms which are used in the basic definition of 'theft' in clause 391.

Clauses 397 to 402 set out the various offences of theft, ranging from robbery and aggravated burglary to going equipped for stealing.

Clause 402 retains a provision about theft of or from mails which is in the Criminal Offences Act and is not found elsewhere in Gibraltar law.

Clauses 403 to 407 create offences relating to stolen goods, including handling (receiving) and advertising rewards.

Taking a reward and doing nothing to earn it is covered by the definition of fraud, but taking a reward with a promise that no questions will be asked is not. Clause 406 covers that situation as a corollary to the offence of advertising a reward with no questions asked. Subclause (2) creates an offence of taking a reward in response to an unlawful advertisement.

The power to search for stolen goods is in clause 407.

Clauses 408 to 413 restate in modern terms existing offences that are similar to theft but not amount to theft. They include taking vehicles, making off without payment and abstracting electricity.

Clause 414 restates the existing offence of blackmail.

Clauses 415 to 422 set out the various ways in which fraud can be committed. The aim of these clauses is to conceptualise and generalise the offence, rather than having a number of offences relating to different types of service and different monetary transactions.

As to whether the Part covers mortgage fraud, clause 422 uses the word 'services' and the UK Court of Appeal has held that that term is wide enough to embrace professional services, commercial services and financial services.

The essential condition is that the service must confer a benefit and be rendered on the basis that it has been or will be paid for.

As regards obtaining a money transfer by deception, this is covered either as fraud by a false representation 416 or obtaining services dishonestly 422. In this connection, it should be noted that Clause 423 defines ‘property’ to mean money or other property whether real or personal, including things in action and other intangible property.

Clauses 425 to 428 set out 4 offences that are similar to fraud. Clause 428 defines a wrongful credit. It does not cover money credited to an account in error, because keeping money paid by mistake amounts to theft. The reason for the offence of retaining a ‘wrongful’ credit is that the ‘owner’ of the money cannot rightfully claim it. If there is a rightful owner, the money must be returned or the recipient dishonestly appropriates property belonging to another i.e. commits theft.

Clauses 429 and 430 are miscellaneous provisions. Clause 430 is limited to prosecutions of and by spouses in connection with theft and fraud. There is a general provision about prosecutions of and by spouses in the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011.

PART 17 FORGERY AND COUNTERFEITING

Part XVII of the Criminal Offences Act deals with offences of forgery and Part XVIII deals with coinage offences, including counterfeiting. This Part replaces both the existing parts, and replaces them with a single Part.

The Part contains two groups of offences – forgery in clauses 433 to 441, and counterfeiting (including counterfeiting of currency notes) in clauses 442 to 449. Forgery does not relate to currency notes but counterfeiting includes coinage offences. Clause 441 abolishes the offence of forgery at common law. The Part does not include personation or cheating, which are common law offences.

The penalties in relation to both groups are in clauses 450 to 453, including powers of forfeiture which apply to both types of offence. No powers of arrest without warrant are included as they are in the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011. There are however search and seizure provisions in clause 452.

Clause 432 contains definitions that apply to the whole Part, including ‘relevant authority’ and ‘postal operator’. The definition of ‘relevant authority’ is in general terms rather than specifying a particular officer. The definition of ‘share certificate’ includes bodies incorporated outside Gibraltar.

The definitions in clauses 433 to 435 come before the offence is stated, as in the Theft and Fraud Part. These clauses do not apply to currency notes, as they come under the offence of counterfeiting.

Clause 445 shows making and having in possession as two separate offences in each subsection. This puts the prosecution to its election as to which offence to charge.

Clause 447 regarding the reproduction of currency notes makes it clear that the absence of consent is part of the offence, and that the offence applies to reproduction on any substance and whether or not on the right scale.

Clause 449 does not create an offence for importation or exportation of counterfeit notes and coins rather by declaring certain imports and exports prohibited, it triggers the provisions of the import and export legislation about prohibited articles.

Clauses 450 and 451 provide for penalties.

Clause 452 provides a power of search and seizure that applies to offences under clauses 447 and 448 but not those under clauses 442 to 445. The general provisions of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011 will apply in those cases.

Clause 453 applies the powers of forfeiture to all offences under the Part.

The Counterfeiting of Euros Rules were made in 2003 under section 281 of the Criminal Offences Act, to implement Council Regulations 1338 and 1339 of 28 June 2001 and Council Framework Decisions 2000/383/JHA and 13436/2001. The substance of the Rules has been retained in clauses 454 and 455, including provisions about the liability of partnerships. In relation to corporate liability generally, the rule is stated in Part 2 of the Bill.

PART 18
PERJURY AND FALSE STATEMENTS

This Part replaces the provisions of Part XX of the Criminal Offences Act.

Clause 456 defines various terms, but not terms defined in the Interpretation and General Clauses Act such as ‘oath’. ‘Judicial proceedings’ are defined in clause 2 of the Bill.

Clause 457 creates the perjury as an indictable only offence.

Clause 458 extends perjury to the European Court.

Clause 459 is about giving false unsworn evidence.

Clause 460 is about false written statements tendered in evidence and creates an offence triable either way.

Clause 461 creates an offence triable either way relating to unsworn statement made under the Evidence Act.

Clause 462 creates an offence about false statements on oath but not in judicial proceedings. It is indictable only.

Clause 463 restates the offence about false statements with reference to marriage which is triable either way.

Clause 464 restates the offence about false statements relating to births and deaths which is triable either way.

Clause 465 imposes a time-limit for prosecutions under clauses 463 and 464. It extends the normal 6-months rule for summary prosecution.

Clause 466 is concerned with false statutory declarations and certain other statements, including statements made for the purposes of or in connection with civil proceedings. The term ‘statutory declaration’ is defined in the Interpretation and General Clauses Act. The offence is made triable either way. The penalty on indictment is up to 2 years imprisonment.

Clause 468 relates to false statements made to secure the issue of a passport.

Clause 469 about nationality declarations under the British Nationality Act 1981.

Clause 470 relates to corroboration. The exception for a section 468 offence (Obtaining a passport) was made in the Criminal Offences Act and is retained.

Clause 471 provides that on a prosecution for perjury in relation to the trial of an indictment or criminal information, the fact of the former trial may be proved by the production of a certificate containing the substance and effect of the indictment or information.

Clause 472 relates to the form of an indictment for perjury.

Clause 473 is a saving for corruption offences.

PART 19 OFFENCES RELATING TO JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS

This Part replaces Part XXI of the Criminal Offences Act (Offences relating to the Courts) and Part XXVI which is untitled but which relates to intimidation etc. of witnesses, jurors and others. The provisions are combined into one Part as they are few in number and relate to similar issues. The topic overlaps to some extent with provisions in Part 19 of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011 about reporting of court cases, vulnerable witnesses etc. but does not conflict with provisions of that Part.

The Part does not seek to codify the common law on perverting the course of justice, but it does deal with contempt of court in clauses 479 to 485.

Clause 474 imposes restrictions on the reporting of divorce and similar proceedings.

Clause 475 is a similar rule about committal proceedings in the Magistrates' Court.

Clause 476 is about taking of photographs etc. in court. The prohibition is only on photos etc. of people, not of the courtroom or precincts as such.

Clause 477 is a saving for the other provisions dealing with intimidation of witnesses, publication of reports, etc. It will apply in particular to Part 19 of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011.

Clause 478 slightly modifies the text in section 283 of the Criminal Offences Act which is about intimidation of jurors as well as witnesses.

Clauses 479 to 485 set out in statutory form the law on contempt of court.

Clause 479 provides that the strict liability rule (that conduct may be treated as tending to interfere with the course of justice in particular legal proceedings regardless of intent to do so) only applies to publications.

Clause 480 declares it a contempt of court to obtain, disclose or solicit any particulars of statements made, opinions expressed, arguments advanced or votes cast by members of a jury in the course of their deliberations in any legal proceedings.

Clause 481 declares it a contempt of court to use in court, or bring into court for use, any tape recorder or other instrument for recording sound, except with the leave of the court.

Clause 482 gives the Magistrates' Court jurisdiction to deal with persons who insult the court, witnesses, officers or legal representatives, who interrupt the proceedings of the court or who otherwise misbehave in court.

Clause 483 regulates the penalty (not to exceed 2 years imprisonment or a fine at level 4 in the Magistrates' Court) and the procedure.

Clause 484 describes the times during which proceedings are active for the purposes of contempt of court. Clause 485 contains supplementary provisions.

PART 20 HARMFUL AND OBSCENE PUBLICATIONS, ETC.

There are provisions on harmful and obscene publications in Part XIV of the Criminal Offences Act and these are brought up to date.

This Part contains two main groups of offences – harmful publications, and obscene publications. It also includes a new offence about indecent displays.

Clause 486 contains definitions. The definition of 'publication' includes 'article'. As defined, the term 'article' includes moving images, so that video games will be covered by the definition of ‘publication’ and their importation can be prohibited under clause 487.

There is no definition of ‘indecent’ but ‘obscene’ is defined by the test in clause 490. The term ‘harmful publication’ means a publication included in an order made under subsection (2). That subsection gives the Minister power to declare a publication to be harmful and to prohibit the importation of it if he is of the opinion that the publication is of a kind likely to fall into the hands of children or young persons and consists wholly or mainly of stories told in pictures (with or without the addition of written matter) which portray the commission of crimes, acts of violence or cruelty, or incidents of a repulsive or horrible nature which might tend to corrupt a child or young person.

Clause 487 makes it an offence to import a harmful publication as well as making it a prohibited import.

Clause 488 creates the offence of printing etc. harmful publications.

Clause 489 confers powers of search and seizure. There are three clauses that confer such powers, but each is slightly different so they need to be retained - see also clauses 494 and 499.

Clause 490 provides the basic definition of obscenity. The case law has added the words ‘as a result of the publication’ to the words ‘read, see or hear’, but they not included as they are self-evident. The rules in this section will apply to all the offences in this Part, not just obscenity.

Clause 491 prohibits the publication of obscene articles or the possession of such articles with a view to publication for gain.

Clause 492 introduces a new rule about photographic negatives. It uses ‘this Part’ so will apply to whole Part, not just obscenity.

Clause 493 abolishes the common law offence, but not the offence of conspiracy to corrupt public morals, as the agreement is the essence of that offence.

Clauses 494 and 495 confer a power of forfeiture on suspicion. They apply only to obscene publications.

Clause 496 confers a power of forfeiture after conviction for an offence.

Clause 497 provides a defence in relation to the publication of obscene matter based on the public good in the promotion of the arts etc.

Clause 498 creates the offence of publicly displaying indecent material.

Clause 499 enables a police officer to seize any article which he has reasonable grounds for believing to be or to contain indecent matter and to have been used in the commission of an offence under section 498. A magistrate can issue a search warrant for such a purpose.

PART 21 DRUGS MISUSE

This Part incorporates into the Crimes Bill the provisions of the Drugs (Misuse) Act. These were enacted in 1973 and have been law in Gibraltar since then, with various amendments, most recently in 2007. They are included in the Bill as they create offences which can be investigated and prosecuted like other offences.

Clauses 500 to 502 are preliminary and include definitions of terms. Clause 502 sets out the classification of controlled drugs into Classes A, B and C. The lists are in Schedule 5.

Clauses 503 to 509 impose restrictions on the importation, exportation, production and supply of controlled drugs. Clause 508 restricts the cultivation of cannabis. Clause 509 authorises certain activities that would otherwise be unlawful, such as medical prescription of drugs.

Clause 510, based on section 12(1) of the Drugs (Misuse) Act, enables the Government to make regulations to prevent misuse of drugs. The Drugs (Misuse) Regulations 2005 will be saved by clause 599(2) so will not need to be remade.

Clause 511 enables the Government to issue directions as to the precautions to be taken for safe custody of drugs.

Clauses 512 to 517 implement the Vienna Convention against illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances of 1988 and extend the scope of the drugs offences to ships.

Clause 512 regulates the manufacture and supply of substances useful for manufacturing controlled drugs ('Scheduled Substances'). The substances are listed in Schedule 6.

Clause 513 enables the Government to make regulations about Scheduled Substances.

Clause 514 provides that conduct which would be an offence if done on land in Gibraltar constitutes that offence if done on a ship registered in Gibraltar.

Clause 515 provides that an offence is committed by a person on a ship if the person has a controlled drug in his possession or is concerned in the carrying or concealing of a controlled drug on the ship, and knows or has reasonable grounds to suspect that the drug is intended to be imported or has been exported illegally.

Clause 516 and Schedule 7 confer on enforcement officers (police and customs officers and any others authorised) additional powers to stop, board, divert and detain ships and to search ships and obtain information.

Clauses 518 to 523 deal with the liabilities of occupiers, create some additional offences and give powers of search and seizure to customs officers and police officers.

Clause 524 provides the penalties for offences under the Part. They are set out in Schedule 8.

Clauses 525 to 529 are miscellaneous provisions, including provisions on forfeiture, evidence and defences, licences and authorities and certificates of analysis.

Clause 530 provides for the establishment of an Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs. The composition of the Advisory Council is set out in Schedule 9.

The members of the existing Advisory Council remain in office under the saving provision in clause 599(3).

PART 22
CRIMINAL TRESPASS

This Part replaces the provisions of Part XV of the Criminal Offences Act that relate to camping, updates the provisions of Part XV that relate to trespass, and introduces new provisions about unlawful occupation of premises.

Clauses 532 to 538 deal with criminal trespass.

Clause 532 gives police officers power to direct trespassers to leave land.

Clause 533 restates existing offences and makes it an offence to forcibly enter any premises, or to forcibly detain any premises against a person with a lawful title.

Clauses 534 and 535 also restate existing offences relating to trespass on Government housing and remaining in public premises after being required to leave.

536 to 538 are new provisions aimed at the problem of squatters in supposedly unoccupied houses and are intended to protect displaced residential occupiers and intending residential occupiers.

An offence is only committed if a trespasser refuses to leave within 48 hours after a notice is served either in person or by being affixed to the premises.

Clauses 539 to 540 deal with aggravated trespass. They create the offence of aggravated trespass, when a person trespasses on land in a manner which intimidates the occupiers or obstructs or disrupts a lawful activity on the land.

541 creates the offence of trespassing with a weapon of offence.

Clauses 542 to 545 deal with unauthorised camping.

Clause 542 restates existing rules about camping on Government land. It specifies the one approved camping site so Schedule 2 to the Criminal Offences Act is not needed.

Clauses 543 and 544 introduce new provisions about removal of unlawful campers and their vehicles, including caravans.

Clause 545 contains provisions as to notice of directions and orders being given to various persons.

Clause 546 enables the Minister to designate sites which must not be trespassed upon.

PART 23
PUBLIC NUISANCES, ETC.

This Part replaces Part XXIV (Nuisances) and Part XXIII (Idle and Disorderly Persons) of the Criminal Offences Act. The provisions are combined into one Part as Part XXIII has only a few rather archaic sections and the issues in the two parts are similar. The Part is called 'Public Nuisances, etc.' to distinguish the offences from the civil wrong of nuisance. The title also shows that the Part includes more than strict nuisance offences, as it includes intoxication and begging.

Clause 547 restates the offence of feeding Barbary Macaques.

Clause 548 makes it an offence to make noise, whether from musical instruments or singing or otherwise, if it causes offence or is likely to cause annoyance or distress to a reasonable person having regard to the time of day, or causes a breach of the peace. The hours between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m. are deemed to be quiet hours and a lower level of noise is to be considered tolerable by a reasonable person. A police officer may, instead of taking proceedings, request the person concerned to reduce the level of noise or to stop making it or take any steps required to reduce the level of noise or to stop the making of it.

Clause 549 empowers the Minister with responsibility for culture to issue a permit for a public performance, a fair or other event, to named persons, and noise arising therefrom will not breach section 548.

Clause 550 relates to danger in public places and obstruction in the streets. The language and scope has been updated to apply to modern-day Gibraltar.

Clause 551 incorporates the provisions of the Criminal Offences (Disposal of Proceeds of Sale) Notice 1991. It applies it to all things removed, detained and disposed of under clause 551 and not only boats and trailers as now.

Clause 552 is about bill-posting and graffiti. If the owner of the premises consents, posters can be placed anywhere, subject to other laws about indecency etc. Subclauses (1) and (2) have different burdens of proof; (1) places it on the prosecution and (2) places it on the defence.

Clause 553 is based on section 277 of the Criminal Offences Act which contained a list of beaches. That section is modified to give the Minister responsible for the environment power to prescribe by Order the areas of sea to which paragraph (a) applies (motor boats). It lists the beaches to which paragraph (b) applies (bathing in breach of a warning signal.)

Clause 554 is about vessels inconveniencing bathers or walkers. The term 'vessel' is defined in clause 2 of the Bill.

Clause 555 contains rules about underwater fishing. There are more detailed rules in the Nature Protection Act 1991.

Clause 556 was in the Criminal Offences Act part on offensive weapons but it is about discharging firearms, throwing stones, and lighting bonfires which are public nuisances rather than weapons offences.

Clauses 557 to 563 make provision for a range of offences where the common thread is intoxication.

Clauses 564 and 565 replace archaic provisions in the Criminal Offences Act about idle and disorderly persons and incorrigible rogues.

PART 24 BRIBERY OFFENCES

This Part replaces Part XIX on Corruption. In order to comply with EU requirements this Part includes provisions about bribery of foreign public officials. It also abolishes common law bribery and embracery.

The Part provides two general offences covering the offer, promise and giving of an advantage or the request, agreeing to receive or acceptance of an advantage. The formulation of these two offences abandons the agent/principal relationship in favour of a model based on an intention to induce improper conduct. The Part also creates a discrete offence of bribery of a foreign public official and a new offence of negligent failure of commercial organisations to prevent bribery.

Clause 566 creates the offence of bribing another person.

Clause 567 creates the offence of being bribed.

Clause 568 sets out the function or activity to which a bribe might relate.

Clause 569 sets out the improper performance to which a bribe might relate.

Clause 570 introduces an expectation test.

Clause 571 creates the offence of bribery of foreign public officials as required by the EU Convention on Corruption.

Clause 572 creates the offence of failure of a commercial organisation to prevent bribery.

Clause 573 defines “associated person”.

Clause 574 empowers the Minister to issue guidance about commercial organisations and the prevention of bribery.

Clause 575 requires the Attorney-General’s consent for a prosecution under the Part.

Clause 576 sets the penalties, 10 years imprisonment for an individual convicted on indictment and an unlimited fine for a corporation.

Clause 577 establishes limited extraterritorial scope for offences of bribery.

Clause 578 creates a defence of legitimate purpose relating to the security services and the armed forces.

Clauses 579 and 580 create special rules about offences committed by corporations and partnerships.

Clause 581 applies the Part to servants of the Crown.

Clause 582 abolishes the common law offences of bribery and embracery.

PART 25
DANGEROUS DOGS

This Part incorporates into the Crimes Bill the provisions of the Dangerous Dogs Act 2003 as amended in 2006.

The dangerous dogs are listed in Part A of Schedule 10. This Part imposes duties on the owners of such dogs additional to those imposed on all dog owners under the Animals and Birds Act. Dangerous dogs cannot be kept, imported, bought or sold after the commencement of this Part and cannot be exported. If found straying they can be destroyed. Entry and seizure powers are given by clause 587.

The prohibitions are subject to an exemption scheme. A person who wishes to keep a dangerous dog can apply for an exemption, which can be granted by the Environmental Agency on the recommendation of the Commissioner of Police on the advice of a committee. The composition of the committee is set out in Part B of schedule 10. The members of the existing committee remain in office under the saving provision in clause 599(4).

Exemption is in turn subject to the dog owner complying with requirements for neutering, microchipping and insuring the dog, keeping the dog on a lead and not letting a young person lead it. Exemptions granted under the 2003 Act will continue in effect under the saving provision in clause 599(5).

PART 26
SECURITY AND THE ARMED FORCES

This Part replaces Part IX (Offences relating to Security) and Part X (Offences relating to the Armed Forces and the Police) of the Criminal Offences Act. The provisions are combined into one Part as they are few in number and relate to similar issues. The provisions which are specific to the Police are adequately covered in the Police Act 2006.

Clause 592 is a power to declare areas of land to be closed or restricted. The power is limited to land in the occupation of the Government or of the Secretary of State for Defence.

Clause 593 prohibits the disclosure of classified Euratom information.

Clause 594 prohibits non-naval personnel assisting desertion from the navy. It uses the phrase 'shown on the books' rather than the old term 'borne on the books' for the sake of clarity.

Clause 595 prohibits the wearing of uniforms of the armed forces of the Crown without the permission of the Secretary of State as expressed through the Governor.

Clause 596 prohibits the wearing of a uniform in such a manner as to be likely to bring contempt on the uniform.

Clause 597 is about annoying or interfering with troops or police. These terms are not defined and the offence is very broad, but is limited to behaviour in relation to troops or police officers when they are on duty.

PART 27 SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS

This Part deals with the repeal of the Criminal Offences Act and related matters. It replaces section 282 of the Criminal Offences Act which is one of only two sections in Part XXV of that Act.

Clause 598 enables the Minister to make regulations about forfeiture and disposal of items. It also requires any regulations or orders made under the Act to be laid before the Parliament at the next sitting after they have been made.

Clause 599 repeals the Criminal Offences Act and subsidiary legislation made under it. There are two extant items – the Criminal Offences (Disposal of Proceeds of Sale) Notice 1991, and the Counterfeiting of Euros Rules 2003. The substance of both these items has been included in the respective Parts (see clauses 551, 454 and 455.)

Section 34 of the Interpretation and General Clauses Act saves subsidiary legislation made under the repealed Act that could be made under the new Act, but it does not cover administrative acts and orders which leaves the position unclear. The position is therefore made clear in subclauses (2) to (4).

Clause 599 also repeals the Drugs (Misuse) Act, the Dangerous Dogs Act 2003, the Crimes (Indecent Photographs with Children) Act 2009 and the Crimes (Computer Hacking) Act 2009, the substance of all of which is now contained in this Bill.

Clause 600 is based on section 282 of the Criminal Offences Act and is a statement about offences under other laws.

Clause 601 sets out the rules about criminal proceedings commenced before the commencement of the Act.

Clause 602 makes amendments to other Acts arising from the change of title of the Act. It does this in broad terms by way of reference, and does not spell out the textual changes.

Subclauses (2) and (3) make specific amendments to other Acts. The disapplication of items 15 and 18 in Part III of the Schedule to the English Law (Application) Act is because the relevant provisions of the Malicious Damage Act 1861 and the Explosive Substances Act 1883 are now in the Crimes Bill.

Subclause (5) enables the Minister by order to declare any other consequential amendments that might be required.
